

JURY QUIZZES 1,000 FULTON EMPLOYEES ON AUTOS, LAND, INSURANCE, BANK LOANS

Georgia Sells $2,650,000 in Road Bonds at Par

THREE BANKS HERE AND ONE IN N. Y. SUBSCRIBE ISSUE

Rivers and Arnall Close Deal Calling for 2 Per Cent Interest; Schools May Get Part of Fund.

Sale of $2,650,000 of Georgia highway refunding certificates at their par value and at 2 per cent interest was announced yesterday by Governor Rivers. This amount is part of the $7,650,000 bond issue voted last June 6.

The purchasers were listed as the Chase National Bank of New York, Fulton National Bank of Atlanta, Trust Company of Georgia and First National Bank of Atlanta. The deal, negotiated by Governor Rivers and Attorney General Ellis Arnall on behalf of the state, is contingent upon a favorable supreme court decision on the validity of the certificates, which were made possible by a constitutional amendment approved by the legislature early this year and by the voters in the June election.

Those Negotiating.
The Governor announced the sale following a conference here with F. W. Blalock, vice president of the Fulton National; J. W. Speas, vice president of the First National; and James D. Robinson Jr., vice president of the Trust Company. William V. Crowley, also a Fulton National vice president, was in New York handling the negotiations with the Chase National. The New York bank was represented in the negotiations by Eugene R. Black Jr., one of its vice presidents. Black is a son of the late E. R. Black, former governor of the Federal Reserve System.

In addition to assessing the low interest rate despite a rising money market, the banks are to pay for the printing of the certificates and for any legal expense involved in the validation of the certificates, Governor Rivers said.

Best Federal Rates.
"I think we are very fortunate in selling these bonds at their par value and with an interest rate of only 2 per cent," Governor Rivers said. "You know the lowest rate prevailing on United States government bonds is 2.18 per cent and we have beat that rate nearly two-fifths of a cent."

Attorney General Arnall is known to have informed the Governor that there is no doubt that the supreme court will uphold the validity of the issue.

Governor Rivers made no announcement as to his plans to use

Scramble for Gun With Man He Charges Attacked Him Is Described.

Francis M. Threlkeld, 43, of 283 Elmira place, N. E., a salesman, known throughout northern Fulton county and adjoining DeKalb county as "Candy Man," drove his automobile up to the front door of The Log Cabin on Peachtree road, Brookhaven, about 7 o'clock last night and went inside and told a story that would fascinate Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson.

He said a man had attempted to hold him up and that he had shot him.

He didn't say that the body of the dead man was slumped in the back seat of the automobile outside. That wasn't learned until

YANKS BEAT REDS, 2 TO 1, IN THRILLER

Battle Dominated by Defense Until Keller Triples; Pitching Masterful

By SID FEDER.

YANKEE STADIUM, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(P)—In as tight and close-to-the-vest a ball game as ever thrilled a World Series audience, the New York Yankees got off to a flying start in their drive for a fourth straight world championship today by nipping the Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 1, with a dramatic ninth-inning score.

Until clouting Charley Keller, the rookie right fielder from the University of Maryland, tripled with one out in the last frame, and came dancing home on Bill Dickey's line single to center, the battle was dominated almost completely by the defense, rather than the offense, to the intense excitement of a crowd of 58,541 in this huge Bronx ball park. Receipts were $219,041.

All the way, the pitching mastery in the right arms of Charley (Red) Ruffing for the Yankees and Lefty Dierker for the National league standard bearers held command. They were spectacularly aided and abetted by the Yankees' double-play kids—Shortstop Frank Crosetti and Second Baseman Joe Gordon—on the one hand, and, on the other, by Frank (Buck) McCormick, the Reds' first sacker, whose fielding was little short of sensational.

There had been momentary "breaks" which had resulted in a run for each club early in the game. The Reds drew first blood, in the fourth inning, when Ival

New Housing In 1938 Up Sharply Here

Home Building Increases Eight Per Cent Despite Rise in Cost.

Home building in Atlanta increased eight per cent in 1938 as compared with 1937 despite a 9.2 per cent rise in cost, placing the city first in residential construction volume in Georgia and 26th in a list of 50 leading American cities, a survey of the industry disclosed yesterday.

Atlanta, the report showed, provided new housing for 2,700 persons during 1938, a gain of 200 over 1937 when residential construction cared for only 2,500 persons. From 1931 to 1938 new homes put up in Atlanta sheltered 17,400 persons.

Residences erected in Atlanta last year were valued at $1,955,842, a gain of $297,097, or 18 per cent over the 1937 level of $1,658,745. New home expenditures in 1938 were $275,338, or 16.38 per cent more than the 1937 total of $1,680,504. From 1931 to 1938 such valuations aggregated $12,038,839.

In number of persons furnished with new housing from 1931 to 1938, inclusive, Atlanta ranked first in the state and twenty-first in the list of 50 leading American cities.

The survey shows that Atlanta homes put up in 1938 furnished 15.5 per cent of the accommodations made available between 1931 and 1938, inclusive. Houses erected in 1930 cared for 16.4 per cent of the persons newly sheltered in the next eight years. Volume peaked at 6,492 people came in 1935, while the low was in 1934, when only 492 were newly housed.

Bottle of Nitroglycerine Used To Hold Up Bank

PICHER, Okla., Oct. 4.—(P)—A blond young man, carrying a soda water bottle which he said contained nitroglycerine, looted the First State Bank of Picher of about $1,500 today after threatening to blow up the place if he was resisted.

The youth seized a pistol from Constable Clarence McAnahan, who was standing in the bank, and used it in the holdup.

WISCONSIN DAIRY FOODS BARRED IN GEORGIA'S RELIEF

Deen Bars Distribution of Surplus Commodities as Retaliation Based on Oleomargarine Tax.

Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, yesterday clamped down on the shipment of Wisconsin dairy products into Georgia for distribution through the Federal Surplus Commodity program. His reasons for ordering the shipments stopped were:

1. That Wisconsin's oleomargarine tax built up a "wall" or "fence" around that state to Georgia products.
2. That the tax acted as a "barrier" to southern cotton products and discriminated against southern farmers.
3. That it was unfair for Georgia taxes to be spent by the federal government on taxed Wisconsin products that are to be used by an agency of the federal government.

SCC Aide Advised.

In a letter to Colonel James H. Palmer, regional field representative of the Surplus Commodity Corporation, Columbia, S. C., Deen said:

"It is not fair, right or just to the people of Georgia to pay taxes to the federal government and in turn for these taxes to be used by the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation (an agency of the federal government), to buy up Wisconsin dairy products such as butter, cheese, dry-skimmed milk and evaporated milk and, in turn, give those products to the people of Georgia.

Must Sell to Buy.
Deen pointed out that the cotton farmers could not buy Wisconsin butter and other dairy products unless they could sell their cottonseed.

Referring to the Wisconsin tax measure, Deen said:

"My philosophy and judgment is that a fence such as this which undertakes to keep oleomargarine products out of Wisconsin is also high enough to keep the butter and other dairy products from leaving Wisconsin. The result is that it is a 'barrier' against cotton products of the south."

Up To Wisconsin.

Deen ordered no further shipments of Wisconsin products to Georgia for the Surplus Commodity program "until such time as the matter may be corrected by the state of Wisconsin."

"In simple language," he added, "it is not a sound policy of government for the people of the whole country to provide tax money contributed to a program that on the first hand greatly benefits the citizens of one state and on the other hand, injures the citizens of another state—equally as important a part of the whole country as in the case of the first state mentioned."

RUSSIA IS SEEKING TO RENT VESSELS FOR ALLIED TRADE

Norway Agrees, But Denmark, Sweden Hesitate; Route Via Sub-Arctic Waters Believed Aim.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Russia today asked three nations bordering on the passage between the Baltic and North seas to rent ships to the Soviet Union with which to carry on trade with Great Britain and France.

Norway agreed immediately, but Sweden and Denmark deferred decisions. The negotiations were understood to be designed to enable the Soviets to send exports to the Allies via sub-Arctic waters instead of through the Baltic, which Germany has mined and otherwise blockaded.

Soviet Overtures.

The Soviet overtures were in the form of requests by the Russian Export Bureau to the three Scandinavian countries for the rental of ships to be used primarily to transport lumber to the Allies. The bureau asked for answers immediately.

(Germany moved immediately to block any efforts to contravene her blockade. Finnish merchants received a German warning to refrain from action susceptible of interpretation as an attempt to avoid the blockade. The German radio reported from Oslo that the Norwegian government received a note from Germany to caution shipping to observe strictly the internationally recognized rules of trade in wartime.)

Acceptance of the Russian proposal by Norwegian shippers was subject to government approval. A final decision was required quickly, since the northern routes will be icebound soon.

Less Enthusiastic.

Danish shippers were less enthusiastic. Because of the greatly increased insurance liability in wartime, Danes held that such trade would have to be on a cash-and-carry basis, with the consignee—Britain or France—assuming full risk in case of loss.

The first report of the negotiations came from the conservative newspaper Allehanden. It reported that the Russian Export Bureau had asked Swedish shippers for eight steamers to carry lumber to the Allies.

FIVE SWEDISH SHIPS SEIZED BY NAZIS

Reichstag Summoned To Meet Tomorrow

Awaits Hitler Address as Daladier Pledges War To Victory.

By The Associated Press.

Adolf Hitler last night summoned his Reichstag for a meeting tomorrow noon to hear a new German declaration of policy in the European war.

Speculation centered on the possibility whether Hitler in one of his stirring addresses would disclose any new chance to end the conflict.

The German point of view remained that the action in Poland is ended and that action in the west has never started.

The need for giving the closest attention to the latest international developments which might have a bearing on his Reichstag declaration was said to be the impelling reason for a decision to stay in Berlin.

France will fight on until victorious in the "war that has been imposed on us," Premier Daladier meanwhile declared in a reply to peace overtures from Germany and Russia.

"France does not wish to live longer in the state of insecurity of these last years," the premier told the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies in a three-hour session in Paris.

Thus the French government was aligned with the stand taken by British leaders concerning peace moves from the opposing camp. Daladier said his government would stand loyally with Britain against any German-dictated peace.

While Hitler will talk to the

LATVIA GIVES REDS AIR, NAVAL BASES

Tiny Baltic State Agrees to Russian 'Pressure'; Stalin Eyes India, Belief

MOSCOW, Oct. 4.—(P)—Reports of the conclusion of a Russian-Latvian agreement giving the Soviet air and naval bases in the neighboring Baltic state reached Moscow tonight.

As Joseph Stalin pressed his far-flung diplomatic campaign, foreign quarters advanced the possibility that Soviet Russia also would attempt to strengthen her hand in the middle east, age-old theater of Russian-British rivalry, once she has completed negotiations with her European neighbors.

(A semi-official report in Riga, capital of Latvia, said the Latvian-Russian accord would be signed tonight. Informed sources there said the agreement would give Russia special traffic privileges over the railway to Libau, Latvian Baltic port.)

Foreign Minister Karl Selter, of Estonia, tonight exchanged instruments of ratification of the Russian-Estonian mutual assistance pact with a representative of the Soviet foreign office at Tallinn, Tass reported.

The pact, which permits Russia to place 25,000 troops at strategic points and build air and naval bases in three localities in Estonia, became operative immediately.

Diplomatic quarters said that Russia might first try to extend her influence in the middle east by making proposals to Afghanistan.

U-Boat Sinks Greek Ship But Lands Crew in Ireland

DUBLIN, Oct. 4.—(P)—The sinking of the Greek steamer Diamantis Tuesday off Ireland was disclosed today when the crew of the 4,990-ton vessel was landed at Dingle, County Kerry, by the submarine reported responsible for the sinking.

The 28 survivors, who identified the submarine as the German U-35, reported their ship was torpedoed not far from the coast of Cornwall, off the Scilly Islands. They said they were picked up by the submarine shortly after it sent three torpedoes crashing into the ship.

QUESTIONNAIRES REQUESTING QUICK REPLIES MAILED

Penetrating Queries Are Believed New Phase of Investigation Into Affairs of County Workers

A series of questions concerning their ownership of land, insurance and automobiles and money they may owe two banks, was mailed to more than 1,000 county employees late yesterday afternoon by the Fulton grand jury as a new phase of the penetrating investigation of county affairs that has been going by three successive inquisitorial bodies.

Following are the five questions asked each county employee:

In what department of the county service are you employed; when were you employed; and what is the nature of your work? Do you own an automobile? What kind of car is it? From whom did you buy it, and when? Does Fulton county allow you any car expense?

Ask About Loans.

Have you borrowed money from the Bank of Fulton county or the Northwest Atlanta bank? Which one? When and how much?

Do you own any real estate? If so, what is it, and where located? From whom did you buy it and when?

Do you carry any kind of insurance? If so, what kind and what on? From whom did you buy it, and when?

The questionnaire was signed by William C. Wardlaw Jr., foreman of the grand jury, and J. W. Setze Jr., secretary.

Request Prompt Reply.

They asked the employees for a prompt reply and explained that the request for information in this manner was done to avoid disrupting county services by subpoenaing all employees. A self-addressed envelope was included with each questionnaire.

Secretary Setze said the letters were mailed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and should be in the hands of all employees this morning.

Though no grand jury official would comment, it was understood the jurymen have been told that the real estate tax assessments of some county employees are lower than the assessments on property of similar location and value owned by private individuals.

Several grand jury committees met yesterday to pursue their investigations, one of them being the committee studying the white industrial farm where white boys are sent.

Members of the citizens advisory committee on the industrial farms met with the jurors. It was understood that the jurors expressed themselves as "highly dissatisfied" with the present operation of the white industrial farm at Hapeville.

Fulton Commissioners Delay Action on Welfare 'Vacancies'

Hailey Will "Investigate" After Letter From Deen Calls Attention to Expired Terms of County Board Members Mitchell and Paden.

Despite a letter from Braswellport. The vacancies, Deen pointed out, have existed since June 30. Hailey recently attacked the operations of the county welfare board and in a letter to the grand jury asked for an investigation of the relief situation. To this Mitchell replied that he too desired an investigation.

Deen took cognizance in his letter to the commission of the resignation of John K. Otley Jr. as a member of the board, but Hailey said he had not been advised of Otley's resignation and "only know what I see in the papers." Hailey said under the law Welfare

Plug for Cigaret Tax Leak Is Sought in Parley Here

Officials and members of the National Tobacco Tax Conference from 20 states will convene in the Henry Grady hotel at 9:15 o'clock this morning to discuss technical problems in tax administration, among them the problem of the yearly leak of $10,000,000 or $15-000,000 in the states' cigarette revenues through untaxed interstate shipments.

Georgia's annual tax loss runs between $350,000 and $400,000 a year, T. Grady Head, state revenue commissioner and vice chairman of the conference, has estimated.

Since the Georgia supreme court has ruled that Head's department may collect taxes on cigarettes shipped in from other states, department revenue has increased approximately $35,000 a month, Head reported. The state's tobacco tax yielded slightly more than $2,500,000 the last fiscal year.

Head and Mayor Hartsfield will welcome the delegates at this morning's meeting. Governor Riven banquet Friday night. The meeting will close Saturday. Tax leak on cigarettes has assumed large proportions recently in nearly all of the 26 states taxing that form of tobacco. Reports last year from only seven states indicated a cost to them of about $3,150,000 through the sale of "outside" cigarettes without tax stamps.

In an attempt to check the large loss, seven southern and western states are exchanging information through administrators as to interstate cigarette shipments and methods of tax evasion. An attempt to secure the co-operation of the federal government was made by the Tarver bill, tabled in congress this year, which asked that postmasters be permitted to furnish to state officers the names and addresses on parcels containing merchandise taxable by the state.

Temperature in Little America, recorded by the inland first weather station in Antarctica, ranged from a little above freezing to more than 80 degrees below zero.

WHITE ASKS PROBE OF 'BUG' INFLUENCE

Demands Inquiry of Relations With Underworld Imputed to Council.

Councilman John A. White trenchantly demanded yesterday a grand jury investigation of relations with the underworld imputed to city councilmen by Mayor Hartsfield in a statement published earlier in the day.

Terming the mayor's words "a blanket indictment of council," White wrote Solicitor General Boykin heatedly of his views and insisted the development required a thorough sifting to determine the facts.

"Mayor Hartsfield's statement about a 'bug' racketeer parading before the council chamber railing, influencing council's votes, is a reflection on every member of council," White declared in making public the letter. "It is, I believe, unwarranted and uncalled for."

Council's Refusal.
The mayor's remark was provoked by council's refusal to revoke four liquor, beer and wine permits on the recommendation of the police committee, and to pass an ordinance allowing police to confiscate automobiles engaged in the numbers racket.

The mayor, in his published comments on Atlanta's crime status, also had declared at one point: "If you have a hangout that breeds crime and the police try to clean it up, council sometimes steps in and prevents the work of the police, and right then you have trouble."

Doesn't Know It.
Hartsfield was out of town yesterday, and could not be reached for a statement. Solicitor Boykin was out of his office. His assistants said they knew nothing of White's request.

"If there is anything wrong in the way council members voted on any of those papers, I think the public is entitled to know it," said White. "I believe through writing of the charges is the only way to get at the truth. If any members of council are allied with or controlled by 'bug' operators or other underworld characters, I do not know it."

"I know I am not," he added, "and I don't appreciate the inference just because there is a difference of opinion between the mayor and members of council. I do not propose to stand such imputations if they can be avoided. I just want the investigation to be made, and let the chips fall where they may."

"Other members of council with whom I have discussed the matter feel the same way. Council members have been mistreated, and there seems to be an effort to browbeat them into submission to somebody's way of thinking."

NEW REGULATIONS FOR TOURIST CAMPS

Fulton Law Will Require
Guests To Have Luggage
When Registering.

Stringent regulation of tourist and trailer camps was agreed upon yesterday by Fulton commissioners. The county legal department was instructed to draw up such a law.

Included among the regulations to be adopted will be:

1. Provision that no one will be allowed to register without luggage.
2. Regular inspection by the police department.
3. Registers must be kept by the camp operators, guests must sign, number of auto license must be recorded, the make or car used, time of checking in and out by guest must be recorded, all employees of the camps must be fingerprinted and personnel checked against criminal records, employees with criminal records must be discharged, and all employees must have health certificates.

Courtland Gilbert, secretary of the planning commission, declared he had found many Fulton camps in bad condition, especially from a sanitary standpoint. He recommended a standard inspection sign should be required.

AFL ARMS TO PUSH FIGHT AGAINST CIO

Convention Also Votes for More Intensive Organizing Campaign.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—(P)—The American Federation of Labor armed itself today to carry on the struggle with the Congress of Industrial Organizations by voting to continue for another year the special assessment levied in 1937 when CIO was pressing its campaign in the mass-production industries.

The convention also approved a more intensive campaign to organize workers in all lines of industry.

The special levy amounts to one cent per member a month. The Roosevelt administration's anti-trust investigation in the building field and its interventions in John L. Lewis' controversy with soft coal operators last spring came in for sharp criticism.

On the same platform the AFL's chief counsel, Joseph A. Padway, spoke critically of the Justice Department's anti-trust inquiry into alleged restraints of trade in the construction field embracing labor unions as well as contractors and supplies.

Demanding to know if Thurman Arnold, chief of the anti-trust division, was "trying to make a name for himself," Padway said he "hoped the attorney general would curb the power of the division in the direction it is going and perhaps suppress it."

Recalling that Arnold was a college professor before he joined the Justice Department, Padway said: "God deliver us from college professors and army generals in administrative positions."

Hull Warns U. S. Merchant Ships To Avoid War Zones

But Declares Government Does Not Recognize "Legality of Unrestricted Interference With American Commerce"; Fears Intensified Warfare.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—American merchant vessels were warned by Secretary Hull today to stay away from European danger zones because, Hull said, there was a probability that warfare on shipping would be intensified.

At the same time, the secretary said that the United States government did not recognize the "legality of unrestricted interference with American ships and commerce."

Hull refrained from mentioning the belligerent which he thought was preparing to increase its attacks, but officials recalled that the German government recently warned American ships to avoid "suspicious behavior" in waters adjacent to Britain and France.

In his statement, made public at a press conference, Hull said: "Information reaching the government of the United States indicates the probability that there may be intensification of warfare on merchant shipping in Atlantic and Baltic areas adjacent to European belligerent shores."

"The government of the United States does not recognize the legality of unrestricted interference with American ships and commerce. Nevertheless, under the special circumstances at present, it is believed advisable to warn all American merchant ships, except American passenger ships which do not carry cargoes to belligerents and are engaged in bringing home Americans from European countries, of the special dangers incurred in entering such waters."

Stark Profiteering. Hull also took steps to eliminate profiteering in the collection of funds for charity distribution in belligerent countries. He ruled out solicitation of funds on a commission basis, the use of "remit or return" merchandise or tickets, entertainments for fund raising purposes if the cost exceeds 30 percent of the gross proceeds, wasteful or unethical methods of soliciting and unethical methods of publicity.

He informed future and past registrants (100 organizations already have registered) that their registrations would be cancelled if they violated any of these regulations.

During the day the state department announced that two Americans, one of whom had been injured, were saved when the Norwegian ship Hoegh Transporter was sunk by a mine in Singapore harbor last night. They were Raymond Edmonds, Dallas, Tex., who suffered fractured ribs, and Sherman Plimpton, of Seattle.

new Japanese government."

(A foreign office spokesman in Tokyo, however, denied that Japan had denounced the Comintern agreement. He stressed the fact, however, that Japan "continues to be displeased" with agreements between Russia and Germany.)

(Shikao Matsushimo, director of the commerce bureau of the foreign office in Tokyo, and six section chiefs resigned to express their displeasure at the government's announcement yesterday of the formation of an independent trade ministry.)

Don't Bow to Violence. Daladier declared that France "refuses to bow to violence and accomplished facts. She wishes not a truce between two aggressors but a durable peace guaranteeing absolutely her national security within a system of security for all nations."

German talk of peace, the premier told the committee, was a "trap" designed for internal propaganda purposes in the Reich.

No concrete proposal has been made to France, he asserted, but should one be made, the French government remains in entire accord with Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain, who Tuesday made a declaration against a dictated peace.

Answering questions in the long session, Daladier paid particular credit to Premier Mussolini for the Italian's "efforts up to the last minute" to prevent the outbreak of war.

Blames War on Hitler. He said France and Great Britain had tried in every way to solve their differences with Germany short of war, adding that Hitler "provoked the war and must shoulder the entire responsibility."

It was announced that Daladier also referred to the United States' effort to change the neutrality law, but what he said in this connection was not made public.

Further indicative of the French mood was the arrest of two persons and inquiry against 29 others whose names appeared on an appeal for "immediate peace."

The cabinet after a session yesterday morning announced a decision to tighten blockade measures to keep credits as well as foodstuffs away from Germany, showing the importance the French are placing on economic weapons in this conflict.

Rains Hamper Combat. Meanwhile, on the fortified frontier of Germany and France, the autumn rains made aerial combat impossible. There were intermittent artillery exchanges in the Zweibruecken region, and semi-official sources said the French guns dominated that city along with the other German industrial towns of Bergzabern, Pirmasens, Saarbruecken, Saarlouis and Metz.

A general staff communiqué asserted that a French submarine had seized and brought to port a German merchant ship.

Daladier also commented on the "sincerity" of French relations with Turkey and said he was happy over the progress achieved toward normal relations with Spain and in improving "distinctly" those with Japan.

He spoke of the possibility of "incidents" in northeastern and southeastern Europe as a result of the Soviet-German pact.

sky, Czech minister in France, for reconstitution of the Czech army in France, bringing fresh manpower.

Daladier disclosed he had signed an agreement with Stefan Osuier to the Allied cause.

45 RESERVE OFFICERS TO MAKE ARMS STUDY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—The War Department today ordered 45 reserve officers to make a special two weeks' study of existing plans to procure munitions in event of war. The study will be made at the army industrial college.

PASSENGER SLAIN IN WILD AUTO RIDE

later when DeKalb county police arrived in response to excited calls from persons at a near-by filling station and store.

Slain Man Identified. It was then that the dead man was identified as John Andrews Anglin, 24, of 223 Gibson street, S. E. He had been shot three times, twice in the right back and once in the left back. The latter bullet went all the way through his body.

When Threlkeld was taken to the DeKalb county jail he related a story that was sufficiently convincing to Lieutenant E. D. Wingo, of the DeKalb county police, for Wingo to release Threlkeld about midnight last night without any charge being placed against him.

Here is what the police say Threlkeld told them:

Youth Asked Ride. "I was accosted by a young man whom I did not know in front of the Log Cabin on Peachtree road, and he asked if I was going to Buckhead and could he ride with me."

"I replied that I had a few more customers to see but would be glad to give him a ride. I drove on down to the store of Mrs. J. E. Cox and while I was getting her order from Miss Edna Knight, an employee, the boy came in and spoke to the girl."

"Returning to my car, I began looking for my pistol in the glove compartment and the boy came up behind and asked what I was looking for."

Displays Gun. "I said, jokingly, 'You know what I am looking for,' and asked him to give me my gun. He pulled the gun out and showed it to me and ordered me to drive on."

"I went down the street about half a block to the store operated by W. R. Smith, and a few minutes later I heard the report of a shot. The boy came into the store with the gun in his hand and asked me if I heard the shot."

"He then stated that there were five more shots in the gun and that he was going to kill me. I told him I wanted to finish getting this order, and he told me to hurry up that it would be the last order that I took. He was flashing the gun around at this time."

Decides To Drive. "We walked out to the car and he ordered me to get on the back seat, telling me that he would drive. He wasn't pointing the gun directly at me, but had it in his hand. The dome light was on in the car and he told me to leave it on when I reached up to turn it off. He ordered me to keep my hands in front of me and not to reach for anything. He turned around and started back toward Peachtree road and I do not know whether he still had the gun in his hand or his lap."

"He turned to the right on Peachtree and drove very recklessly, almost running into several cars before he turned to the left on to Osborne road. I was pleading with him not to do anything to me, and he would tell me 'to hell with you, I am handling this.'"

"After turning off Peachtree road, he told me to turn off the dome light. Realizing that he was probably going to take my money, I took all $19, except a dollar, which I knew he had seen me collect, out of my wallet and put them into my shoe. After traveling about two and a half miles down this dirt road, he turned off onto a small road. Here there were two big brick or concrete pillars on either side, and after traveling a very short distance the car stalled."

"He got out of the car and or-

MEN'S GARDEN CLUB TALKS OF FLOWERS

What do men discuss at a garden club meeting? War, livestock, finances. Yes, but flowers, as may be expected, really have the center of the stage.

Atlanta's flower lovers are not all members of the fair sex. The Men's Garden Club, of Atlanta, which met yesterday has the distinction of being the second largest club of its kind in the country. It is composed of 80 Atlanta men who really love gardening and are proud of their success with their flowers.

At the meeting yesterday Charles Sill showed colored slide pictures which he took during the past year of wild flowers, wall vines, bulb flowers, and a variety of irises and chrysanthemums.

100 MILLION GAIN IN YEAR REPORTED BY ATLANTA BANKS

Deposits Increase $57,767,225 Since September 28, '38; Individual Banks' Figures Are Reported.

Deposits and resources of four major Atlanta banks have increased approximately $100,000,000 since September 28, 1938, according to information forwarded to the comptroller of the currency in Washington in response to a routine call for a statement on the condition of the banks.

Trust Company of Georgia, Fulton National Bank, First National Bank, and the Citizens and Southern National Bank reported a deposit increase of $57,767,225.50, and an increase in resources of $58,844,755.98 between September 28, 1938, and last October 2. Figures for the Citizens and Southern include all of its 10 Georgia banks.

Trust Company of Georgia reported deposits of approximately $35,028,000, a gain of $7,923,000 over last year, and resources of $40,527,000, an increase of $8,229,000. First National Bank reported total deposits of $121,887,621.19, a gain of $22,056,177.72. The banks' resources totaled $134,697,232.93, a gain of $22,237,713.03.

Figures for the 10 Citizens and Southern banks were deposits, $104,372,250.78, an increase of $20,402,639.58 over September of last year, and resources, $113,660,217, a gain of $20,729,720.75.

Fulton National Bank reported its deposits as $36,814,796.89, and resources as $39,823,264.63, gains of $7,384,408.20 and $7,648,362.20, respectively.

POSTAL RECEIPTS SHOW INCREASE

Ninth Consecutive Month's Gain for Atlanta.

Pointing to a record total for the year, Atlanta postal receipts during September registered their ninth consecutive gain over the corresponding months of 1938, Postmaster Lon F. Livingston reported yesterday.

Receipts for last month were $429,241.56, an increase of $11,632.47 over September a year ago, and a gain of $32,145.01 over last August.

The increase, Livingston said, was surprising, in view of the quantities of political campaign literature that flooded the post office in August and September, 1938.

F. D. R. Enlists 'Big Business' In His Fight on 'Profiteering'

New Advisory Group Made Up of Nation's Financial and Industrial Leaders.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—Fifty-three of the biggest men in American industry and finance enlisted today in the administration's campaign against "unwarranted price increases."

They are the members of the commerce department's business advisory council. Specifically they agreed to act as a liaison between the government and business in keeping watchful eyes on the price situation.

The members include W. A. Harriman, chairman of the Union Pacific Railroad and chairman of the council; E. R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of United States Steel Corporation; S. Clay Williams, chairman of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; James D. Mooney, vice president of General Motors Corporation; Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Company; D. M. Nelson, vice president of Sears, Roebuck and Company; Paul W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company; James F. Fagarty, president of the North American Company; and others of similar prominence.

Although the council announced that it would act in a strictly voluntary capacity, the nature of its membership is such that it is in a strategic position to contact business interests which make prices.

The members receive no salary or expenses. The council will continue its price discussion tomorrow and also will discuss Latin-American trade possibilities.

BACK TAX COLLECTION. DUBLIN, Ga., Oct. 4.—City Marshal E. C. Pierce has received orders from city council to make levies to collect approximately $15,000 in delinquent city taxes.

'FIFTH AVENUE GIRL' RECOGNIZED TWICE

Boys Are on the Job; Two Win Awards of $5 Each.

Atlantans were on the alert yesterday as the "Fifth Avenue Girl" became exhausted trying to dodge her pursuers. The boys were on the job. Miss X said she didn't have a chance against them. She began her walk by strolling through a well-known department store.

As she left the store and stepped out on the street, Harvey Banks, of 1297 Westview drive, tapped her with a copy of The Constitution and said, "You're the 'Fifth Avenue Girl,' I hope, 'cause if you aren't, this will be the sixth good-looking blonde I've accused falsely." Banks, who is a former student at Commercial High school, said all the other girls he approached gave him a blank stare and said "Huh." Two of them were a bit chilly, but the other three were really flattered at being mistaken for the girl who looks just like Ginger Rogers. Banks won his $5 about 11 o'clock. But Miss X has a different starting time each day.

Robert Smith, of 1113 Stewart avenue, was the other lucky winner. Smith, who had a copy of The Constitution with him because he is looking for a job, and was using the want ads as a guide, said the "Fifth Avenue Girl" was the only blonde he had seen, and he thanked his lucky stars because he had happened to run into her and win $5. He made his discovery about 3 o'clock on Poplar street.

Today and tomorrow Miss X will be around. The girls better develop as great an interest in this mystery blonde as the boys show if they expect to win $5. And don't forget, a copy of The Constitution is necessary if you expect to collect the prize money.

Sixth Girl He Stopped Gave Him $5.00

Constitution Staff Photo—H. J. Slayton.

"You can't get away from me, Miss Fifth Avenue," said Harvey Banks, of 1297 Westview drive, as he tapped Miss X yesterday with a copy of The Constitution and claimed five dollars cash award for his perseverance. He tried six times, tapping five girls and saying "You are the Fifth Avenue Girl," only to receive surprised, and sometimes cutting, stares.

$100,000, his services would have been cheap," Homer Gullatt, assessor, declared. "Because of him, millions of dollars have been added to the county and state tax digests, and he didn't get a dime on this increase."

Hailey said the proper method would be for members of the tax staff to put values on the books. Frank R. Fling, commission clerk, was re-elected unanimously for a six-year term, and his assistant, Miss Marie Parker, was re-elected for two years.

Charles S. Coggins replaced E. L. Phillips as a member of the board of examiners for engineers (boiler operators).

G. Albert McDuffie was elected successor to the late Joe Bosworth as a tax investigator.

The commissioners approved the action of Juvenile Judge Garland Watkins in appointing Thomas Scoggins as a probation officer. Dr. Charles R. Adams, commissioner, said Scoggins was one of those discharged in the recent shake-up at the county white industrial farm.

Salary Rise Fails. A move to raise several salaries in the department of public works was started while the commissioners were in session but was not mentioned publicly when the commissioners could not agree. At least two of the members objected to the raises and the others did not risk a fight in open session.

A resolution complying in full with a recommendation of a previous grand jury was adopted by the commissioners to abolish the sewer department of the county and place it as a division under direction of A. A. Clarke, superintendent of public works.

New Speed Zone Adopted. A new set of traffic rules imposing new 25-mile per hour speed zones in the county. The zones are on Gordon road from the city limits to Bolton road, and on Bankhead highway from the city limits to Hightower road, and Peachtree street from the city limits to Piedmont road.

A contract with the State Highway Department to advance $15,000 of a proposed $64,000 grading project for the county to obtain rights of way for widening the Roosevelt highway 2.4 miles south of College Park was referred to the legal department. The state would pay the county $64,000 for grading the project with $15,000 to be spent for the right of way. Credit for the amount would be taken in county labor.

The county agreed to pay the National Guard unit $25,000 immediately for building its new armory. Colonel Thomas Alexander appeared before the commission to request it.

The commissioners started their meeting 11 minutes late yesterday. Four members held a 31-minute conference in Fling's office preceding the session. Attendance was late.

the money. Under the constitutional amendment it goes with other funds to the credit of the highway department, but it was freely predicted at the capitol that the chief executive may use it later to help carry on the school program.

It is not expected that the schools will need much more than $1,500,000 additional to carry on their work for the first four months of the term.

Sale of the bonds is expected to definitely postpone until January any projected special session of the legislature.

Chase Is Depository. Governor Rivers said he had no idea when the money to be realized from the sale of the certificates would reach the state treasury and he made no announcement as to how the certificates were to be divided among the four institutions involved in the purchase. He did announce that he had named the Chase National a depository of the state to handle the bond deal.

Downing Musgrove, the Governor's executive secretary, said that the four Atlanta members of the clearing house association had been invited to participate in the bond program but that only three of them agreed to participate.

It was learned that the Chase National's first bid was for the entire issue and that on his return to the capitol yesterday from a hurried trip to New York Governor Rivers informed the Atlanta banks that he was preparing to accept the New York institution's proposal. The three Atlanta banks then announced a willingness to participate and the New York house agreed to accept a share. At first the Chase National announced it was bidding on "all or none."

MUSIC CLUB SEASON OPENED BY SPAETH

Full House Hears Entertaining and Informative Lecture.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG

Something entirely new in the way of musical entertainment, and because of its uniqueness, tremendously enjoyable was the lecture of Sigmund Spaeth which officially opened the twenty-fifth season of the Atlanta Music Club last night. A full house, which means that the membership sale was highly successful, greeted the speaker at the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Mrs. J. O'H. Sanders, chairman of the club's morning musicales, introduced Dr. Spaeth.

Sigmund Spaeth's topic for the evening was "The Truth About American Music," and he handled it in the clearest way imaginable. He has the gift of injecting enough wit and fun into his lecture to make it highly entertaining, and at the same time he traced the development of American music in a way that was informative. There was not a dull moment during the whole lecture.

He began by asking his audience to forget the usual classifications of "classic" and "popular" as they are loosely applied today, but to remember that the real classics were popular before they became a classic. He uses the term "permanent" music, rather than classic. He reminded us that Stephen Foster's songs were "popular" when he wrote them, but they became "permanent" music and therefore today are classics.

He asked us to follow him in a resume of our 200 short years of musical development, and asked us to think of American music as a whole, for "popular" music definitely affected many trends in the development of our own creative work. Because we sprang into being as a country almost overnight we never went through any peasant stage, therefore we never developed any true folk songs. Our early music was borrowed from the English. Mr. Spaeth reminded us that even our national anthem, "Star-Spangled Banner," was originally an English drinking song, and in its time has had 21 different sets of words.

Dr. Spaeth discussed the "popular" as well as the music that has become "permanent" of each era. He illustrated his lecture by singing many of the songs that were the hits of their day. It was like looking at old pictures and seeing the ridiculous styles of another day. To hear these songs today they are so ridiculously funny, yet in their time they were very fashionable and people took them seriously. Notable for the laughs they got were "We Never Speak As We Pass," "The Eastern Train," "My Mother Was a Lady," and many others.

bond program but that only three of them agreed to participate.

Tampa Adventurer Saved From Death in Mid-Ocean

GENOA, Italy, Oct. 4.—(P)—Italian line officials received word from the steamer Belvedere en route to New York from Genoa tonight that she had rescued Guy Avery, of Tampa, Fla., as his 18-foot sailboat, Miss Tampa, was swamped in mid-Atlantic. No details of Avery's condition were given except that he was in danger of drowning when picked up.

Avery's presence in mid-ocean was unexplained, since the American Export liner Exeter had reported on August 13 that the 35-year-old Tampa (Fla.) sailor was sighted near Gibraltar on a solo voyage from Hamilton, Bermuda, to Genoa.

A one-time laundry truck driver, Avery began the trip last May 12. He originally set out from Tampa in May, 1935, but laid over for nearly a year in Bermuda, repairing a planing damaged by insects. The little yawl had only sail power and was without chronometer or sextant.

as Swedish shipowners considered asking Germany to establish control harbors to investigate cargoes and determine whether they carried contraband.

The next largest ship seized was the 1,544-ton Britt, bound for Aberdeen, Scotland, also with a cargo of wood pulp.

The others were the Dera, Virginia and Markia, with a total tonnage of about 4,000. The nature of their cargoes was not disclosed.

Five Swedish ships have been sunk heretofore and one was seized by the Germans yesterday.

The shippers asked the German legation here if it would be possible to have the legation provide certificates to departing ships which would be accepted by German naval commanders as proof that the cargoes were not contraband.

The legation replied that it was without authority to issue such papers.

FREIGHTER REPORTS SUB OFF U. S. COAST

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—(P)—Captain W. F. Gayle, of the Calmar lines' freighter Texmar, reported on arrival at Los Angeles harbor today he had seen a submarine of unidentified nationality Monday night near San Benito Island, 360 miles south of here.

He said the submarine was heading south without lights when first sighted. As members of the crew watched, the craft's running lights flashed on, but there was no hail from it, nor was any searchlight trained on the Texmar, which had lights blazing on the United States flag, the crewmen said.

After passing the Texmar, the submarine's lights blinked out again and it disappeared in the darkness.

GEORGIA PROGRAM TO EVEN FREIGHT RATES HITS SNAG

Rail Carriers Submit Sugar Schedule Set at Two Cents Per Hundred Under That of Trucks.

The Georgia Public Service Commission's newly inaugurated program to stabilize and standardize freight rates within the state hit a snag yesterday as rail carriers submitted a schedule two cents per 100 pounds lower than truck rates on moving sugar in carload lots.

Rail carriers contended they can move 40,000 pounds in one car and therefore were entitled to submit lower rates due to the fact two trucks are required to haul the same load. Rates for 18,000 pounds were the same as those set by the commission for trucks.

Hearing Called.
Commissioners called a public hearing for November 1 to determine whether rail carriers may continue in effect their newly established 40,000-pound minimum rates.

The contention is an outgrowth of the commission's program to eliminate "cut-throat competition" between rail and truck carriers. Sugar was the first commodity to be classified under the program.

Commissioners set up a minimum scale on sugar in 18,000 and 40,000 pound lots for the trucks based on mileage to assure rates high enough to cover actual cost of operation of the trucks and at the same time provide a standard schedule so that all shippers would know what they and their competitors are paying. Chairman Walter R. McDonald said.

These teams, made up of either two boys or two girls, illustrated various projects of the club including, first aid, canning, a vacation for housewives, importance of poultry products in the diet, care and selection of bed linen, raising fryers for profit, producing quality eggs, selection of dairy cow, and vaccinating for fowl pox.

Prize Winners Named.
Winners of these demonstration contests among the girls were Blanche Mixon and Annie Mae Phillips, of Fulton county, whose subject was "Care and Selection of Bed Linens and How to Make a Bed." In the blue-ribbon class along with the winners was the team from Hancock county. Red-ribbon citations went to groups from Montgomery, DeKalb and Bibb counties.

In the boys' contest the demonstration of "How to Select a Profitable Dairy Cow" won honors for the Chatham county team, made up of Cecil Cribb and Fred Oakley. Along with them in the blue-ribbon class were the representatives of Carroll and Hall counties. Red-ribbon rating went to the team from Crisp county.

(This was the first report of a submarine landing the survivors from a ship it had sunk, although there have been instances in which German submarine commanders directed ships to the rescue of crewmen of torpedoed ships.)

The submarine came up to the pier in broad daylight and put the survivors ashore.

The crew of the U-boat waved to bystanders on the shore and they returned the greeting. After landing the survivors the U-boat immediately turned back to sea.

TWO MORE NEUTRAL SHIPS ARE SUNK

By The Associated Press.
Two more neutral ships—the 18th and 19th of the war—were reported sunk yesterday as Secretary of State Hull advised American merchantmen to steer clear of European danger zones in the face of anticipated intensified sea warfare.

First of the new losses was the Høegh transport, a 4,814-ton Norwegian vessel, which sank after striking a mine at the entrance to Singapore harbor. All aboard, including two Americans, were rescued by a British patrol boat. The loss was Norway's fifth.

The second victim was the Greek steamer Diamantis, 4,900 tons, which was sunk Tuesday off the coast of Ireland.

In addition, a Stockholm newspaper reported yesterday that an unidentified German ship, loaded with iron from Sweden, had hit a mine near the Island of Bornholm in the North Sea. If confirmed, this would be Germany's tenth known loss.

The two neutrals raised to 62 the total number of ships reported destroyed and sent the gross tonnage loss to 256,296, exclusive of cargo. Other losses, by national-

BERGDOLL LOSES LEGAL MANEUVER TO ESCAPE TRIAL

Tries To Show Case Dead by Act of Limitations But His Plea Is Denied; Still Must Face Charge.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4. (AP)—A general court martial of 13 officers struck down today the contention of Grover Cleveland Bergdall that the statute of limitations protected him from prosecution now for his evasion of military service in World War-time.

Thus, the wealthy draft-dodger must continue to face charges of desertion and escape from military custody—charges which on conviction might bring a total sentence of five years in addition to the five-year sentence he already is serving for draft evasion.

This blow to Bergdall's defense fell late in the day—at the end of six days of hearings on the legal points involved. Tomorrow the actual trial begins.

Escaped in 1920.

Bergdall escaped from an army guard in 1920 and fled to Germany; he returned last May to face his accusers. The gist of his claim was that during the 19-year period of his supposed residence in Germany, he actually had spent a total of seven years in the United States—hidden away in the opulent Philadelphia home of his aged mother. Thus, he argued that he had been available to the military authorities and since they failed to put hands upon him then they had no right to prosecute him now.

The court held that even if he was in residence as he claimed, he was in concealment, entered and left fraudulently and used fictitious names.

This issue settled, he entered pleas of innocent.

Jury Middle-Aged Officers.

The 13 middle-aged officers, who had deliberated for 50 minutes as to what they should find, sat drumming the long table with their fingers as Lieutenant Colonel Lester S. Hill, Jr., the court martial's law officer, read the decision.

Bergdall, himself middle-aged now, and pudgy as well, hunched forward disconsolately, and turned his eyes to the floor.

BLACKHALL RESIDENTS STOP LIQUOR PERMIT

Jere Wells, county school superintendent, led a delegation of Blackhall district residents before the county commission yesterday to oppose granting a liquor store license to L. W. Riley at 2109 Stewart avenue. The commission advised the petition when nearly 50 members of the delegation raised their hands in opposition to it. A license for 2427 Piedmont avenue was granted.

Secretary Hull's warning to American merchant ships was contained in a press conference statement, in which he said the government had received information which "indicates the probability that there may be intensification of warfare on merchant shipping in Atlantic and Baltic areas adjacent to European belligerent shores."

BRITISH FREIGHTER REPORTED TORPEDOED

ATHENS, Thursday, Oct. 5. (UP)—It was reported here early today that the British freighter Belgravia, en route from Greece to England with a cargo of currants, was torpedoed in the Atlantic.

Lloyds shipping register does not list a "Belgravia" but lists a Belgravian, out of Liverpool, of 3,136 tons.

Industry Steps Out

No more convincing confirmation of the contention that private business will do its full share in restoring this country to normal prosperity if it is once freed of governmental competition could be found than the announcement of the vast expansion program launched by private electric utility companies in the south-east.

Georgia will share in this program, through a $4,000,000 steam-electric generating plant at Macon. President Preston S. Arkwright, of the Georgia Power Company, in his announcement, stated that in so far as possible local labor and local materials would be used in construction of this plant. He estimated that at least $1,000,000 of the contemplated expenditure would consist of salaries and wages paid at the plant site, at Macon.

The expansion program, which includes also large plants in Alabama, Florida, the Carolinas, etc., has been made possible, it is stated, by the recent peace agreement between the Tennessee Valley Authority, the New Deal's "yardstick" electric agency and Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, which operates electric properties in various southeastern states.

It has long been argued by economists that one of the reasons for stagnation in industry is the invasion by government of activities that should properly be left to private enterprise. The expansion program by the utilities in this section of the country adds tremendous weight to this argument coming, as it does, so soon after a cessation of the competitive rivalry between a tax-supported and government-operated enterprise, the TVA, and private electric organizations.

There is another feature to the power program which is exceptionally gratifying and indicative of the rapid improvement in living conditions, as well as in industry, in Georgia. President Arkwright, in explaining the necessity for the new generating plant, said it was because of the steady increase in consumption of electricity in central and south Georgia, in those areas served by the Georgia Power Company. This increase is not confined to one class of consumer, but includes residential, industrial and commercial usage generally.

Included in that increased consumption must be the rapidly expanding use of electricity in rural areas. New power lines, many of them made possible through the Rural Electrification Administration, have added hundreds of new farm users of electricity. Thus is illustrated a field in which legitimate government activity may supplement and co-operate in the growth of private enterprise.

Electricity is one of the most valuable of modern aids to better living. The more Georgia homes there are, in rural or urban areas, which make intelligent use of electric power, the better conditions of life will be among the state's people.

Preston Arkwright stated that the increase in consumption of electricity in middle and south Georgia, according to the records of his company, had been from 190,000,000 kilowatt hours in 1930 to 400,000,000 kilowatt hours in 1939. Yet this is but a start. The day will soon be here when that consumption will be multiplied many times and it will become necessary to construct many new generating plants similar to the one now to be built at Macon.

All of which adds up to the inevitable conclusion that Georgia and her people have started along the wide road that leads to better living and a greater and more universally distributed prosperity for the state and all its people.

Fire Prevention

Governor Rivers, by proclamation, has designated the week beginning Sunday, October 8, as "Fire Prevention" Week. In Atlanta the observance is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the local fire department. Its importance can scarcely be exaggerated and the value to the community of wide participation in its activities could be inestimable.

It is significant that the week is known as a preventative effort, in that it symbolizes the change which has come over the objectives and the activities of fire departments all over the country.

There was a time, not so many years ago, when professional fire fighters were that, and nothing more. All their training concerned the putting out of conflagrations after they had started. The work of preventing the blaze from starting, of remedying conditions conducive to unwanted fire, was almost entirely neglected.

Nowadays, while the personnel of a city fire department is far better trained, and equipped, to conquer the fire that is under way, at least 50 per cent of its work consists of prevention. They seek to end conditions of construction and building operation that contain danger of fire and seek to teach the people how to avoid destructive fire altogether.

It is to this type of the fireman's work that "Fire Prevention" Week is dedicated. It deals with the pre-fire problems, first of all. It is here that the work of the Jaycees, and through them, of the general public may be most valuable.

But there is one factor of public co-operation, after a fire has started, that is of vital importance. That is, to stay clear of the fire lines, to avoid spectator crowding that will interfere with the work of the fire department. It has been contended, not without good reason, that lives have been lost in Atlanta fires which might have been saved, if the general public had not impeded the work of the department at the time.

Fire prevention is the chief interest of every member of the fire department but it is, primarily, a matter calling for the interest of every one.

Automobile Show Time

This is automobile show time. At this season of the year, in the largest cities, special displays of new models are popular annual affairs, while in the smaller communities dealers are showing new cars in less commodious quarters but equally interesting displays, to smaller groups of prospective buyers.

It is no simple achievement to trace from memory the evolution of the automobile, from the first chugging, throbbing "buggy" of 30 or 40 years ago, to today's luxuriant car which has every convenience for comfortable, quick, economical transportation. The evolution of the automobile stands as a technological achievement probably unequalled in the scientific development of things useful to mankind. Once an uncommon luxury, a real crudity, it is now a practical necessity, a thing of perfection.

Comfort, convenience and usability was the chief goal of the designers of the new 1940's, although beauty has not been sacrificed in the least. Cars have been made larger, with wider seats, providing more room for passengers and enlarged space for their travelling equipment. On the whole the price lists have not been revised upward. There even have been some reductions in special classes of cars. It has been this maintaining of a reasonable cost to buyers, over a number of years, which has made the United States far and away the greatest automobile producing, using and owning nation in the world.

Probably one of the most satisfying achievements of the automobile industry has been the providing of a car at a price to fit almost every pocketbook. The range of prices from the dealer's used car lot to the most luxurious car in his display room embraces every strata of the nation's purchasing power.

Editorial of the Day

THE PICTURE CHANGES

(From The Tampa Morning Tribune.)
When the history of the Roosevelt administration is written, the first three weeks of last September will go down as a period of a most unusual turn-about in governmental policy. Issues and programs have been reversed, and the turn came so unexpectedly that many departments of government were caught unawares.

It was just a few weeks ago that unemployment was the principal worry of administration leaders. Now officials are worrying over the scarcity of skilled labor more than they are over the unemployed. Factories in all branches of industry are calling men back to work and plans for a big deficiency appropriation for WPA probably will be overlooked during the special session of congress.

Late in August the government's vast farm control organization was making a determined effort to bolster farm prices. There was talk about bigger farm subsidies. Today the same organization is concerned about a too rapid rise in prices. There is talk of curtailing the subsidies and the Justice Department is readying anti-trust statutes for a battle against war profiteers.

About a month ago the State Department reported the trade agreement with Britain was coming along in good shape and there were prospects of freer trade. Now the same officials are worrying about neutral rights of shipping and troubled with seizures of alleged contraband material.

Even with the rapid change of events since the war started it has not been too long ago to forget the warnings of some pessimistic politicians that the President should seek the advice of business leaders if the Democratic party was to be returned in 1940. Some of these same political leaders now are critical of President Roosevelt for being too chummy with business and paying too little attention to them.

It has been a period of great change. Possibly with the exception of the turn-about during the first 100 days of the Roosevelt administration, there has never been another like it. By the way, whatever happened to those persons who thought the federal budget would never again be balanced?

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NO FOUNDATION IN FACT WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—While the neutrality debate rages wildly in the senate, the whisper goes 'round Washington, "This senate talk doesn't matter; repeal of the arms embargo is really going to be licked in the house." As the whisperers are numerous, it seems worth saying that, at present, their story is without visible foundation in fact.

In a big congressional fight, to be sure, anything can happen. It is even possible that the organized campaign of letter-writing will frighten enough senators to weaken the counted repealist majority in that chamber. And the spines of representatives are notably more gelatinous than the spines of senators.

But, as of today, House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn is perfectly confident that he has enough Democratic votes to repeal the embargo without help from repealist Republicans. No reliable house poll has been made as yet, and, since many representatives have gone home to finish their holidays while the senate talks, inquiry on the spot is difficult. Rayburn has made informal soundings of sentiment, however, in every state's house delegation. He considers the results conclusive, and his opinion is further substantiated by the failure of responsible leaders on the other side to dispute his claim.

No doubt the real source of the whispers about trouble in the house is the recollection that, when the Bloom bill was up last session, outright repeal of the arms embargo was not voted. Instead, the house approved the so-called Vorys amendment, permitting exports of the airplanes so vitally needed by England and France, but withholding a limited group of lethal weapons and ammunition. The vote was 214 for the amendment and 173 against.

SHIFT IN SENTIMENT The situation has changed markedly since then. In the first place, a distinct shift in house sentiment is reported. In the state of Washington, for example, where three of the six Democratic representatives favored the Vorys amendment last time, all six are now said to be for straight repeal of the embargo. Word of similar changes has come from an impressive number of other states. Then, in the second place, the Vorys amendment was voted on at a time when Rayburn for the duration, just as men like Harry F. Byrd and Walter George have joined the repealists in the senate.

Meanwhile, the chief of the anti-repeal forces is the incredible Hamilton Fish, which should be an invaluable aid to the other side.

COUGHLIN'S COME-UPPANCE If Rayburn is correct that he can get repeal through the house, he must have 218 of the 260 Democratic votes in his pocket. Possibly he is a trifle optimistic, but no one expects the Republicans to vote against repeal either.

Men close to the shrewd Republican leader, Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, say that he would not be in the least surprised to see a fifth of his cohorts plumping for repeal. His own attitude is in doubt, for, when the President asked what his stand would be at the White House neutrality conference, Martin replied that he did not expect to make up his mind until he saw the measure passed by the senate.

In any case, the issue will not be decided on partisan lines. Certain of the most respected house Republicans will associate themselves with the repealist strategy committee, while Martin is determined not to become involved in the fight in his capacity of party leader.

The truth is that the anti-repealists' only hope lies in the propaganda campaign being conducted by such men as Father Charles Coughlin. Unfortunately, Coughlin is able to frighten some lawmakers, but unquestionably in a hundred members of both senate and house would love a chance to put the ranting radio priest in his place. If their statements to the leaders can be trusted, the great majority of senators and congressmen think feeling in their districts is better represented by the polls showing a strong repealist majority than by the anti-repeal mail. Thus, the issue gives them the chance they have been waiting for to defy Coughlin's bogus thunders. The betting still is that they will seize upon it rather eagerly.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Three Score Years and Ten.

So Fay Templeton, the light-hearted glamour girl of the Gay Nineties, died, only last Tuesday. In her 75th year, she was, and her passing evoked only a small, two-paragraph story on an inside page. Do you remember a song about "Mary, Mary, Mary is a Grand Old Name?" Or a show entitled "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," written and composed by George M. Cohan? Fay Templeton was the original "Mary" of the show, when it was first produced in 1895.

And there was no star on Broadway who shone more brightly than did Fay.

You know, and love, of course, the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. Fay Templeton was the heroine in many of the finest of those masterpieces.

They say she first went on the stage when she was one-half "Cupid." If so, it was, in a large sense, symbolic of her career.

Feminine Ideal For Thousands.

For Fay Templeton provided a glamorous, feminine ideal for thousands of masculine hearts. And remember, it was a clean, decent, worthy ideal. Fay Templeton was a girl to be admired, on stage or off. She never did anything to discredit her profession, in an age when it was considered morally damning to be known as "an actress." She was a good girl, was Fay, and she radiated goodness, as well as beauty and charm, across the footlights.

She rather set the style in feminine type, for her period, and it is no harm to say that there must have been many a youth first attracted to the girl who became his life's mate because she reminded him of the Templeton.

They Give Us Much.

Players, such as Fay, who send their smiles and their gaiety and their compelling charm across the footlights fill an important role in life. It has truthfully been said that the man or woman who creates smiles is performing a service that most of us do not appreciate to the full. I know that some theater stars receive high salaries, but somehow I doubt if they are overpaid. For who can measure, in dollars and cents, the value of an hour or two of genuine happiness, of forgetfulness of everyday worry and sorrow?

And I think, emphatically, that we should keep entirely separate the player, as seen upon the stage, and the same man or woman of private life. After all, when I find enjoyment in the theater, it is not my concern or interest how the players conduct themselves when off the stage. They concern me no more than the private lives of other complete strangers. They may have one, or a dozen, husbands for all I care, either consecutively or simultaneously. They may eat toast or apple pie for breakfast and may sleep in satin sheets or upon crocus racks. So long as they entertain in their professional work, nothing else matters, to me.

Silly Press Agency.

I know that the illogical fascination of the press in the private lives of modern entertainers is largely the fault of press agents. And of theater managements. It was a sad day for the stage when the first theater manager to conceive such an idea offered some woman a contract for no other reason than that she had shot some man and been acquitted by an overly susceptible jury.

That was, probably, the first infiltration of outside activities into stage lore. It was rather sickening.

It was unfortunate, too, that it was ever thought interesting to inform the public that Anna Held bathed in milk. After all, so long as she was clean enough to maintain her behind-the-footlights allure, why should any audience care whether the lady bathed at all?

And now, when every marital or private incident in every player's life is emblazoned in the headlines, it is rather good to think of a day when such as Fay Templeton won her way to fame solely on the basis of her ability to charm and to amuse. I wish they'd return to that oldstyle method of evaluation.

In the meantime, may the Templeton west in peace and go to that Trouper's Valhalla where age does not wither nor custom stale the ability to bring innumerable curtain calls.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Monday, October 5, 1914:

London, October 4.—Having repulsed the German attacks, presumably in the vicinity of Roye, the French, according to an official communication issued late today at Paris, have resumed the offensive at several points, while other positions on their left have been maintained.

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Saturday, October 5, 1869:
"The Board of Education will hold a special meeting today for the purpose of electing a teacher of music."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Not Proud NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The solemnization of a n. y. World Series involving either the Cincinnati Reds or the White Sox for the first time since the historic fiasco of 1919 was bound to evoke memories of that series in which several members of the White Sox kicked away the championship and shook the faith of the nation. The national pastime to its very marrow if not to its wellsprings. It is an interesting and accurate if not encouraging commentary on American citizenship that this really unimportant malfeasance became at once in the public heart a betrayal second only to that of Benedict Arnold. It so remains, and today the names of the underpaid wretches who succumbed to temptation and resentment are carved in the American hall of shame, while hundreds of judges, mayors and political bosses who jeopardized the liberties of the people by sabotaging democracy are forgiven or, at worst, merely forgotten.

Inasmuch as these individuals are being pardoned again in their chains, I think I will just point out a few facts in mitigation, the first being that they were not actively corrupt but were corrupted. They were corrupted by a dirty little sneak sent down from New York by Arnold Rothstein, who was known as a professional gambler, but who in truth was no gambler at all, but an uncommonly foul and contemptible thief.

Rothstein knew that the White Sox, the greatest ball team ever assembled up to then and possibly the greatest up to the date of these presents, were vastly underpaid by a rich boss who was greedy for his open-handed generosity by buying drinks for political barflies and sports writers and contributing to charities.

Streak of Larceny.

Rothstein knew also that there were a couple of players on the team who had a pronounced streak of larceny and by promising bribes of $10,000 each to those who were in on the plot he fixed the series. He knew that if he could string them along with small down payments until they had booted away the first game he would have them on a spot and wouldn't have to come up with the rest of the bribe money.

Those White Sox lawyers named Mayevlonow, Bill Evans, the old American league umpire, said he used to stand behind the plate and just give a guess when Eddie Cicotte would throw up that shine ball of his. Cicotte would rub the ball on a patch of paraffin wax on his pants till a spot about the size of a quarter shone like a full moon and then sling it. It would seem to explode like a meteor.

Moreover, they were a great fielding club, two of the square guys being Eddie Collins and Cracker Schalk, who are really historic stars of immortals.

After the story broke in a great splatter, late in the summer of 1920, and the corrupted men were banished in national disgrace, a young Milwaukee lawyer named Ray, who afterward served a couple of hitches in congress, took over their case and sent me the salary figures. They were indecently stingy, for old Charlie Comiskey, the noblest Roman of them all, as he was called in print in Chicago, was one kind of a man to the public but a very different man to the help.

$3,000 I haven't the figures just now, but for all Enough. his display of hospitality to his barfly friends, Charlie thought $3,000 was enough to pay a star member of the greatest ball team ever assembled. He would roll out a keg of venerable whiskey, as smooth as honey, and set a long board of free lunch at a cost of a hundred dollars or so, and people would get to singing harmony and toasting the old Roman with never a thought of the salary standards of the greatest ball club ever assembled.

The sports writers saw only the hosty side of old Charlie, and, anyway, in those days many of the players were ignoramuses or illiterates, and most people thought they were lucky to be paid at all for playing a game. The players got almost no hearing, and some of them thought the writers silenced their grievances in print for free drinks.

Even after the expose, which was said to have been written by Charlie's brother, fair wear and tear could have accounted for that, the noblest Roman of them all was incredibly callous and ungrateful to a little scrawny pitcher named Dick Kerr, who won two games in the faked series with most of his own team against him.

Kerr wanted a little raise. Comiskey wouldn't give it to him, and when Kerr dropped around to talk business as the club passed through Texas on the training trip, Charlie's son, Lou, wouldn't talk to him. So Kerr retired and lost his career merely because he asked for a raise. That was what loyalty to the noblest Roman got him.

After 20 years some people's memory gets fuzzy, but let me tell you that not a soul had the story until it was over. The one who cracked it then was Hugh S. Fullerton, who merely said that seven members of the Sox would never play again, but didn't say why. He knew what was up, but didn't have the facts, and the guilty men not only did play next season but had almost won another pennant when the blowoff came. After they were expelled the team collapsed, and the White Sox haven't won a pennant since.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

EMOTIONS: 1916-1939 The morning of July 10, 1918, dawned un auspiciously. America was neutral in the war which raged in Europe. The newspapers reported the Battle of the Somme was at its height. German hopes and successes were high. England was annoying America by stopping her ships. Germany had antagonized many by the sinking of the Lusitania in May of the year before.

That July morning a long, black craft, barely to be seen above the dancing, mild summer waves, was observed moving through the waters of the Chesapeake bay toward Baltimore.

That craft was the German submarine, the Deutschland. She was a merchant submarine, carrying no arms but instead a cargo of dyes, drugs and chemicals, valued at $2,000,000.

On the tiny bridge was the captain, Paul Koenig. He and his crew had brought their craft 4,000 miles from the German harbor of Bremen, through hostile seas, to the American port. It was, perhaps, the most daring feat of the entire naval history of that war.

The emotions of America were stirred.

HOW WERE THEY STIRRED? It is important to consider how they were stirred. Today the best public opinion poll, that conducted by Dr. Gallup, indicates that more than 90 per cent of the American people dislike Adolf Hitler and his unscrupulous government.

The same poll indicates an overwhelming majority of Americans prefer to keep out of this war; feeling we have no part in it. It becomes interesting, therefore, to consider the Deutschland and the emotions stirred by its arrival. How did America feel about the German ship?

Captain Koenig, blue-eyed, handsome, became an idol, popular and social. There are many Germans in Baltimore. They went wild. But, for that matter, so did many others who had no German blood. The mayor of Baltimore gave a banquet in his honor. The Elks made him an honorary member. Crowds followed him and all but mobbed him for autographs when he could be had. The musicians played German airs in restaurants. A vaudeville circuit offered him a fat contract.

The captain and crew were taken to Washington. German sympathizers entertained them. One of the sightseeing groups was arrested for speeding. Interested persons paid their fine. A group of 13 called at the White House. They were shown about the place. They were amazed, as are callers today, at the freedom allowed. The group did not see President Wilson but did see Secretary of the Navy Daniels. Members of congress and many Washington residents went to Baltimore to see the submarine.

This was after the Lusitania had been sunk. This was after hundreds of ships had been sunk by German subs. Germany looked like a winner in the World War.

A young assistant secretary of the navy named Franklin D. Roosevelt was at work building up the navy and having bills introduced to buy up lands for future naval bases.

That was July, 1916.

THE CONSTITUTION FILES The files of The Constitution show that American sentiment was divided. There were many who insisted we should remain out. There were those who called the Germans murderers, and wanted us to punish them.

The time came for the Deutschland to start her return voyage. She was loaded with nickel and rubber.

England and France had protested mightily. The State Department weighed the matter. The Deutschland carried no torpedo tubes and no guns. Therefore she was a merchant ship. They properly gave her clearance papers.

Services were conducted and prayers offered for the safe passage of the ship and its crew. A great crowd saw them off.

Outside the capes stood the British cruisers, waiting beyond the three-mile limit. The ship went down the bay. Once outside, the daring young captain and his mates took bearings. The ship slowed. The captain and mates disappeared into the ship. The conning tower hatch was closed. The ship submerged.

She arrived in Bremen on September 24, 1916.

CAUSE AND EFFECT There was a sentiment then to keep out of war. It might have been strong enough to keep us out. There was one factor defeating.

In Germany six merchant submarines were to be made ready. Von Tirpitz opposed. He believed that shipping could be driven from the seas. He believed if unrestricted submarine warfare were begun, England could be starved into defeat. He was able to sell his program.

A few weeks after the Deutschland left Baltimore, Woodrow Wilson was elected on the slogan, "He kept us out of war." Less than six months after his inauguration, the United States declared war on Germany.

What about today? There is less pro-German sentiment than in 1916. There is more likelihood of remaining out of war.

The American people smell the war debts in this war. They no longer can be sold on high-sounding phrases. They know that England and France, with others, welshed on their honest debts. They know we saved Europe once and that Europe could not keep the peace. Americans have grown cynical of Europe. There is more hope of keeping out of war today than in 1916 when the Deutschland arrived at Baltimore.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The slow and stupid dinosaur and all his kin died out ages ago because they could not change with a changing world.

Now our world has changed as completely as that of the dinosaur, and those who do not adjust themselves to the change will as surely perish.

The world of yesterday, a product of many generations of slow development, was built by reason and designed for the arts of peace. Having learned by sad experience that no permanent civilization could be developed by means of violence and robbery and treachery, men had quit their savage ways and by common consent had accepted the rule of law and order.

The world they built under that rule—the world of yesterday—was founded upon ethics and morality. Men had learned that it pays to be decent. Credit and a vast commerce were possible because men trusted one another. The liar and the cheat were scorned. Pledges were kept. There was honor and good faith between men and nations.

Despite occasional wars and many crimes, the whole business of the world was geared to the standards of peace, and men everywhere felt secure. They lived by the rules of decency.

Then the World War left the world crippled, and people who suffered year after year lost faith in ethics and began to dream of taking by force. "Divide the wealth" became a slogan, echoed around the world.

Individuals and bands had taken by force all through the world's history, but now whole races began to dream of bettering their condition in the same way. Nothing restrained them but their training in ethics and morality.

Then came the dictators—men who denied the existence of God. If there is no God, it is obvious that man is merely another accidental

FRENCH CONQUER STRATEGIC WOOD IN TANK STRUGGLE

Hammer Each Other at Close Range Till Armored Plates Split Open and Crews Are Killed.

By RALPH E. HEINZEN.
WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, ON GERMAN SOIL, Oct. 4.—(UP)—The Germans were driven from strategic Borg forest today in a battle of tanks on the eastern slopes of the Moselle river where several of the steel monsters were wrecked and their crews killed in point-blank shelling.

For several hours the tanks battled each other at close range without supporting troops or protecting planes, hammering away with the guns of their revolving turrets until one tank after another fell out of the battle with its armored plates split open and its crews dead.

French Attack.
The battle, in which French tanks attacked the Nazi tanks lumbered into the forest to meet them, carried the French through and beyond the forest a few miles inside Germany in the Moselle valley.

Front-line dispatches said the Germans were cleared from the east bank of the Moselle in an important triangle formed by the Luxembourg border, the town of Borg and the German customs town of Perl at the tip of the salient. The advance relieved the German menace to the French west wing at the extreme northern edge of the Rhine-Meuse front.

French infantry followed up the tank assault after the Germans had been cleared from the forest and quickly consolidated the newly won positions, mopping up mine-infested slopes and entering several villages said to have been hastily evacuated in the German retreat.

The attack on Borg forest, a purely local operation, was part of the strategy of General Maurice Gustave Gamelin of straightening out the French advance line and digging in before the Germans can unleash any full-force blow.

Natural Corridor.
As result of today's advance, French officers said, there is little chance of a surprise enemy drive down the Moselle, a natural corridor into the rich French province of Lorraine.

By a series of what appear to be carefully co-ordinated operations proceeding simultaneously at a score of points, the French are biting off bit-by-bit chunks of German territory between the Saar and the Luxembourg frontier to add to the 88,000 acres of German territory which I was told has been occupied in the first month of the war.

At least 50 villages lie within the conquered zone but 100 or more German towns and villages have been evacuated just ahead of the French advances.

U. S. Navy Good But Needs To Be Better, Say Experts

Analysis Shows That Ship for Ship, This Country Has No Superior, But Authorities Recognize Weakness in Face of Combined Attack.

An analysis of America's preparedness for war, giving a detailed picture of the actual defense position on land and sea and in the air, is presented here in a series of articles, of which this is the second, by an experienced Washington correspondent who has made a special study of the subject.

By BLAIR MOODY.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—There is a widespread belief among Americans that the United States navy is supreme on the seas, that it is unsurpassed anywhere and would offer an impenetrable defense against any other power or combination of powers that dared launch an attack against us.

That is a myth. It is a proud, patriotic fallacy, the possible peril in which is nowhere more keenly realized than among the "professionals" whose business it is to run the navy itself—unless it is among agents of potentially hostile powers whose business it is to know just what we have to defend ourselves with.

We have a good navy. Man for man, gun for gun, ship for ship, it is probably the best navy in the world—certainly it has no superior.

Lacks Men, Guns, Ships.
But it is lacking in men, guns and ships. Compared with the British navy, which may or may not be in friendly hands if the Nazis win the current war, it is definitely deficient. Compared with the Japanese navy, no one knows. While congress has authorized naval building to a point 20 per cent greater than the former "treaty strength," and while 90 fighting ships are now being built, recent world developments have jarred into inside Washington an entirely different approach to the question of what is and is not safe.

Panama Canal Vital.
It is often said that the naval defense of the United States is dependent on the Panama canal. In one sense that is true, in another it is not.

The canal does reduce the time of fleet travel from our Pacific to Atlantic coast from at least eight weeks to three. It is the "life-line" which, if cut, would leave one coast or the other to be defended almost entirely by airplanes, because to split the fleet between two oceans might pave the way to destruction of both halves of it by an immensely superior force in each ocean.

It is also true that if a hostile power should run a tramp steamship loaded with dynamite into one of the Panama locks and blow it up, we could be badly crippled. A meticulously careful defense against any such scheme has already been installed.

Where does the present building program leave us in actual fighting strength vis-a-vis our actual naval problem?

Many U. S. Ship Outdated.
Well, we have 546 ships, but of those only 348 are commissioned naval vessels and, while some can hurl a broadside of 19,000 pounds of steel, others can deliver only a 13-pound shell. Of the 348, only 236 are fighting ships and of these all but 131 are "over-age"—the estimated useful life of such vessels, which of course varies in years with different classes.

There are 15 battleships on our fighting line, of which one is over 26 years, the "normal" age, two will become over-age next year and four more in 1942. Our two newest battleships are 16 years old, the next two 18 and the rest older. We have not a single battleship designed after the World War. Now building we have eight battleships, but at the present rate of construction not one of these will be ready for service before 1942.

Where does this leave us in comparison with other powers?

We have the same number of battleships as Britain, 15, though hers are "younger" and in some cases bigger. Japan has at least 13, maybe more.

Russia Does Have Navy.
In submarines, the rapier of modern sea warfare which would be invaluable if our coasts were under attack, we have fewer "under-age" boats in action than any other major navy. Our total is 24, Germany's 50 to 70, Italy's 98, France's 76, Japan's at least 44 and Russia's (ever hear of the Russian navy?) 134!

We have 39 modern cruisers, England 62, Japan 28. We have five aircraft carriers, England 6 (7 till the other day), Japan at least 8. We have 54 modern destroyers, England 107 and Japan at least 123. We also have a flock of old destroyers, useful for patrol but hardly effective in battle.

Including auxiliary craft, since 1933 we have laid down 179 new vessels of which 89 are completed. By 1944 we'll have 18 battleships, 45 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 56 sub-

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

SELF-DEFEATING.

Dr. Arthur F. Compton, famed scientist, declares that the paramount need of our age is good will—that all antagonisms are self-defeating. Most of us, I judge, have believed that ever since we accepted the Christian concept, but when a man of Dr. Compton's influence testifies to this simple truth, it attracts attention. Let me quote a paragraph or two of his article:

"In the technological society in which we find ourselves today, science is emphasizing more than ever the need of love for one's neighbors—and that is the central element of Christianity. We are only beginning now to think as a world unit. Antagonisms are self-defeating in the world community and mutual dependence requires consideration of the rights of others. The world as a whole seems to be acquiring a higher standard of morality, and it is evident that the growth of science has been coincident with this moral growth.

"Good will among men is more urgently needed today than at any time in man's history. Man progresses by co-operation. Politics can show us the way, but it cannot give us the spirit, and that is what is vitally needed. Science can give us knowledge and consequent power; but we must then determine how that power can and may be used."

Very good. And that is where Christianity has its opportunity—its responsibility. I am glad to see Dr. Compton saying that the world is acquiring a higher moral standard, and that science has contributed to this better day. I believe it. One has but to observe how the use of radio today is revealing the inside story of war's subtle schemes to everyone to realize how great a service science is rendering. Or how science is aiding in the apprehension of criminals. Or how science is invading the fields of superstition to destroy disease.

But remember well that Dr. Compton frankly declares that science needs the directing hand of faith if knowledge and power are to be properly appropriated. Apart from such influence the forces released by science may prove brutal in their unworthy use. The antagonisms of greed and covetousness and jealousy are today proving themselves self-defeating, as always they have. History attests this fact. And I believe that more people recognize the fact than ever before.

War, for example, is now on trial as never before. The people who want war are on the spot. It doesn't matter who they are or where they are. God is using war to let people see where so-called civilization is shot through with evil. The forces that are employing war are running into fearful collision which must prove self-defeating.

LEGACY OF LOVE

Green Has No Sympathy for Rita
When Told Her Engagement Was BrokenBy KATHRN BEMIS.
INSTALLMENT II

Rita shrugged. Thank goodness, she was the child of Delores' first and only love alliance! Delores had really loved John Rhodes, the young millionaire, when she married him, but he had died when Rita was only 2. Delores' social ambition since then had carried her into marriage and divorce with two other rich men in succession. Four years ago, being well able to do as she pleased, it had been her whim to make handsome Wilmot Green her fourth husband. He was 15 years her junior, and penniless, but suave and clever. Delores said it was a relief to let such a keen-minded man take financial responsibility off her shoulders. Delores was smart enough, however, to keep tight rein on her own fortune, but she let him have complete control of Rita's inheritance, much to Rita's annoyance.

Somehow, Rita never could go to Wilmot Green with any of her problems. His piercing black eyes filled her with loathing, his voice like hard chipped ice, frightened her. In fact, she had never known any of her mother's husbands well, and had secretly hated them because they insisted she be packed off to boarding school and kept there.

But now she was finished with school, and Wilmot had been obliged to have her around for quite some time. It wasn't so bad when Delores was home, but living alone in the house with Wilmot and the servants got on Rita's nerves.

Preston Meeker was only politely conscious of Rita during the remainder of that night, but Rita was gay, recklessly gay. Many an eyebrow lifted over the way she was carrying on with her steady stream of partners. Poor Rita! What else could you expect from a daughter of Delores? Will Preston Meeker ever be able to hold her?

But inwardly, Rita was a blazing fire of shame. She knew she was feverishly irresponsible in her dilemma. She wondered if it would be wiser to blazon the truth to the world, say she'd been expertly jilted. But even this crowd of old friends would show her no mercy. Some of them would even be glad. No, she couldn't tell them.

For the sake of appearances, she left the party with Preston. At the door of her home she dropped the engagement ring into his hand with a careless "Better luck next time," and left him standing there slightly nonplussed at her apparent indifference.

But never had she been so filled with self-abasement. Whatever was to become of her? What was this ghost that foiled every matrimonial plan she made? How was she to combat it?

Rita sat up in bed the following morning, wearily pushed honey-colored curls from her aching eyes. She stared stupidly at the lazy ribbon of golden sunshine coming through the open dormer windows, laying itself tenderly on the French gray walls of the large room, on the duobonnet satin hangings, giving high sparkle to crystal bottles and jars in the duobonnet satin, lace-skirted dressing table.

But Rita's tired brain registered none of this. It was desperately searching for a way to adjust her latest misfortune. Rita Rhodes had jilted another man in her mad, superficial search for pleasure! Rita, who tired of a suitor as soon as she ensnared him! Oh, she knew how every one would twist this latest morsel of gossip!

And—there was her stepfather to be reckoned with. That was something!

She met Wilmot Green that night at dinner. They dined alone in the big somber mahogany-paneled dining room which nothing but her mother's fluffy chatter had ever seemed able to enliven. If only Delores were here now, this bad hour would be so much easier.

As soon as Hobbs, the butler, had served the soup and left the room, Rita said flippantly, "When I think of the turtles' supreme sacrifice, I can't go this!" She pushed the soup plate aside and braced herself against Wilmot's expected caustic comment. He flashed her a stern dark glance over the pink chrysanthemum centerpiece. He was handsome in his tan riding clothes. He had just come in from a long canter, hadn't bothered to change. It was rather an insulting gesture, Rita thought. If her mother were present, he would be looking quite different.

The short-clipped black mustache over his thin red lips moved almost imperceptibly with the raising of his heavy dark brows. "You need nourishment after an all-night party, I should say," he remarked, his voice edgy.

Rita's knuckles whitened against the lace cloth. He was leading right up to what she had to say. There was no avoiding any of it now.

"Perhaps," she conceded grudgingly. "But—what a party! A total failure so far as I was concerned!"

He dipped his soup spoon slowly, his long fingers emphasizing his meticulously tended nails. He asked, "Was the party wilder than usual—or didn't Preston come up to your expectations?"

Her lashes curled down over her ashamed eyes. She unlocked her fingers, nervously began tracing a finger around the lace pattern of the cloth.

"That's it, Wilmot. I've something to tell you. Preston wanted—that is, he thought—anyway, everything is finished between us. He just as much as told me he didn't care to marry me."

"What nonsense! And I presume you didn't protest—try to patch it up. You simply broke off the engagement to go on to your next—victim. I don't know what gets into you, Rita."

"When a man shows no interest in—in continuing, I'm certainly not going to throw myself at his head," she told him heatedly.

"It's disgraceful! Three engagements of yours have been announced—three times they've been broken. What kind of reputation will you have? You know how the newspapers will play it up! And your mother—well, all I can say, Rita—your mother will be deeply humiliated—and disappointed in you."

Tears welled in Rita's rebellious eyes, her lower lip quivered. Then all at once the whole injustice of this situation struck her full force. She burst out angrily, "But I can't help it! You know very well, Wilmot, I can't! Men are wild to marry me—then suddenly, for no sane reason, want to forget it. It can't be my fault—yet sometimes I wonder."

"Fact of the matter is, Rita—you show no particular qualities a man admires in a woman. I presume it will always be so. You should try to be less frivolous. A man likes to marry something more than—froth."

Rita flung him a quick appraising glance. She wondered if by any chance he was thinking of her mother, regretted having married her. Certainly, Delores was frivolous enough—paid him the least possible attention, specially lately.

"I may look and act as if I never had a serious thought in my head—but you should know, Wilmot, I'm not like that, really. But from now on, I'm finished with men! I don't care what any of them think of me! I shall never marry! Let the gossips squawk, let them rave—and see if I care! From now on, I'll be myself!"

"Rita! Think what you are saying! Are you planning to disgrace the family?"

"Yes, exactly. I'd love it!" she cried, jumping from her chair. She flung herself angrily across the room, pausing in the doorway only long enough to cry out hysterically, "Thank you for your kind sympathy—just what I might have expected!"

In her upstairs living room she slumped into a big wing chair, and burst into bitter sobs. She hated Wilmot—the despicable, accusing sneer! She hated him with all her heart and soul!

After a few minutes, she calmed down, remembered that tonight she had promised to go to a screen premiere with Jilly Stern and Bob Dilling, escorted of course by Preston. Now, thank heaven, she would have an excellent excuse to remain at home! She could truthfully say that Preston had left town. When she thought about it, what a grand relief it was! No more Preston!

Then why was she acting like a broken-hearted child? She was a rank coward. She was afraid of what people would say, afraid of the ridicule of the newspapers. And that wasn't being a good sport.

A knock sounded on the door. She hastily dried her eyes and called, "Come."

Wilmot stood tall and menacing on the threshold.

"I merely want to tell you about the new chauffeur. Abner gave notice yesterday and left immediately. Something about a sick sister. After 10 years in your mother's employ, he showed little gratitude, I must say. He recommended a young fellow for the place and I took care on. He'll probably do well enough—his references were excellent. Abner was getting too old, anyway. The new man's name is Stanton."

"Thank you for telling me—but I won't need him often. I'm going in for a lot of reading—perhaps I'll take up my painting again. I'm tired of going around in circles."

"Splendid! Now you're showing some sense! If you follow a course like that, you'll be far happier—and you won't be exceeding your allowance so often."

"But I don't have nearly as much allowance as the other girls in my crowd! It seems inconsistent—when at 25, or when I marry, I'll come into a bigger income than any of them ever expect to have. I can hardly make ends meet on the small checks you give me, Wilmot."

Why not try a few of the simple pleasures then? Money isn't everything. It's not good for a girl of your age to have too much of it."

Variety To Grace Screens Of City Theaters This Week

War, Love, College and Sophisticated Comedy Themes on Film Fare.

Two war dramas (last week), a love story, a college yarn and a sophisticated comedy are on the Atlanta screen fare this week.
Leslie Howard opens at the Grand today in "Intermezzo." Ginger Rogers is the star in "Fifth Avenue Girl" at the Fox; "U-Boat 29" opens tomorrow at the Rialto and "All Quiet on the Western Front" at the Paramount. The Capitol will open "Sorority House" Sunday.

"INTERMEZZO" OPENS AT GRAND TODAY
"Intermezzo" a Love Story, opening at Loew's today, comes to town hailed as one of Hollywood's triumphs of the season.
National critics have praised it for many reasons, but none more important than it introduces to American audiences an exciting new star, Ingrid Bergman. Miss Bergman hails from Sweden where she is her country's leading actress. She is lovely to look at, unaffected and wholesome. She is a consummate actress and plays the piano exquisitely. Leslie Howard, who is starred with Miss Bergman in "Intermezzo—a Love Story," is to be congratulated on his choice of leading ladies. In "Pygmalion" he gave us Wendy Hillier and now, in "Intermezzo—a Love Story," we are introduced to Ingrid Bergman.

The story is daring in the extreme. Howard is a concert violinist who deserts wife and family for an "Intermezzo," or love interlude, with Miss Bergman. When their "Intermezzo" is over, they go their separate ways, with only the memory of a great love to console them. It is a simple old-fashioned theme, but it is told so beautifully, with such good taste and sincerity, there is no doubt that "Intermezzo—a Love Story" is one of movieland's "best-of-the-year" pictures.
Gregory Ratoff's direction is deft and direct. The whole picture is scored so that the emotions of the on-looker are molded to the play. Edna Best brings dignity and sympathy to the role of the deserted wife while John Halliday is his usual suave self as the old friend of the family. Alice Todd, as the little daughter, is very sweet.

David O. Selznick and Leslie Howard, joint producers of "Intermezzo—a Love Story," know the craft of picture-making which well nigh reached perfection here.

"FIFTH AVENUE GIRL" STARS GINGER ROGERS
A working girl discovers what the millionaire's problems are in "Fifth Avenue Girl," a highly amusing comedy which opens today at the Fox theater with Ginger Rogers starring and supported by Walter Connolly.

Connolly appears as millionaire pump manufacturer whose wife is having a flirtation with a fake count from Europe; whose son is more interested in polo than pumps; whose daughter is madly in love with the chauffeur, a Communist; whose business is about to fail, and whose entire life revolves around his birthday and leaves him to celebrate alone.

Ginger is out of a job, but has the sky still over her head. She is watching the seals in the park when Connolly walks through trying to find out if his butler was right when he said the trees were budding and spring was on the way. As you might expect, Ginger and Walter start talking, she thinking he was trying to "pick her up."

It ends by Connolly hiring Ginger to come home with him and help him enjoy life. Though she remains herself all the way through the film, the household begins changing from the moment she enters. Wife forgets love, thinking a young gold-digger was attempting to steal her husband and having the audacity to come into her home to do it. Son (Tim Holt) quits polo and goes to work to save the pump business he thinks father is forgetting; daughter marries the chauffeur and becomes a capitalist. Connolly and wife make up over beef stew. And what happens to Ginger you'll learn when you see the film.

PARAMOUNT SHOWS UNCENSORED WAR FILM
With Europe in the thick of another war, "All Quiet on the Western Front," recognized as one of the greatest war films ever made, has been released in its original uncensored version for the first time.

The history-making film, winner of five international awards, will open tomorrow at the Paramount theater with many dramatic scenes that could not be shown during its original release.
Foreign countries, sensitive to anything which might reflect on their victories or defeats on the field of battle, have hitherto cast a halting hand on producers in Hollywood. Even though opposed to weakening the dramatic appeal of their stories, the picture-makers were never the less obedient to the foreign protests. But today, recognized as an international medium for the spread of goodwill, the motion picture and particularly "All Quiet" is presented as is.
Restoration of the censored scenes, ample re-editing and modernization of the film accomplished by Universal experts only last week, have resulted in the production of a film which will strike as deeply into the hearts of men, women and children everywhere as did the original "All Quiet" almost a decade ago, in the opinion of those who have already viewed the reissue.

SORORITY HOUSE OPENS AT CAPITOL

What goes on behind the closed doors of a modern sorority house is revealed in the new screen version of "Sorority House," which opens at the Capitol theater Sunday with Anne Shirley and James Ellison in the starring roles.

Miss Shirley plays a small-town girl whose father, a grocer, borrows enough money to enroll his daughter in a midwest university. Like all the other young ladies at the school, she aspires to be pledged into a sorority, but the experiences of other poor coeds prove the futility of her desires.
A whirlwind romance with an upperclassman, however, changes everything. The young man secretly tips off the president of each sorority that Miss Shirley is an heiress. This has the desired effect, for she is immediately "rushed" by them all.
Unaware of her boy friend's ruse, the young girl attends a round of sorority affairs, meets social leaders and seems certain of obtaining her long-cherished pledge. The rivalry of the coeds and the hapless arrival of her parent during a fashionable dance combine to reveal her true identity.

RHODES TO SHOW "THESE GLAMOR GIRLS"

When women declare social war anything can happen and it all does, according to reports, in "These Glamour Girls," new comedy drama, starting today at the Rhodes theater. Lew Ayres and Lana Turner are featured in the leading roles.

Redhead Miss Turner achieves her first top billing assignment as the Dime-a-Dance hostess who puts herself on the spot by accepting the invitation of Lew Ayres, a college boy on a bender, to attend the exclusive week-end parties at Kingsford University and immediately is plunged into battle with a battalion of Park avenue debutantes. From there on, it is said, the entertainment values soar.

through comedy, pathos and drama, with Miss Turner accomplishing an historic job and Lew Ayres adding another topnotch performance as the boy between the battlers. M-G-M gathered together the outstanding youth and beauty of Hollywood for this picture. In the cast are Tom Brown, Richard Carlson, Jane Bryan, Ann Rutherford and Peter Hayes. Anita Louise, as Daphne Graves, the leader of the defending debutantes, plays the first heavy role of her career. Marsha Hunt likewise changes her screen mold and appears as a tragic character, a perennial prom girl, sensing the loss of her popularity, prefers suicide to humiliation.
S. Sylvan Simon directed. The picture is based on the magazine story of the same name by Jane Hall and Marion Parsonnet.

RIALTO WILL OFFER "U-BOAT 29" TOMORROW

Action aboard a German U-boat during the last World War is dramatically told in the Rialto's thriller attraction opening tomorrow. It is "U-Boat 29" and tells the story of a submarine attack on the British fleet which is directed by a school teacher.

The woman spy, whose teaching duties are merely a ruse, directs the sub by furnishing its commander with knowledge of the British fleet obtained from an officer kicked out, he thinks unjustly, from His Majesty's navy.
In the featured roles are Conrad Veidt as the sub commander and Valeria Hobson as the school teacher spy. Sebastian Shaw is also in the cast.

Many underwater shots are shown as are pictures of life in a German sub.

Development and protection of North Georgia's natural resources will be discussed by the Georgia Appalachian Trail Club at its tenth annual meeting Saturday and Sunday in the Walasiyi inn at Neel's Gap.

The two-day meeting opens Saturday night with a banquet. A square dance led by Dr. Lane Mitchell, of Georgia Tech, will follow, and campfire singing will complete the night's program.

Club members will get down to serious work Sunday morning when Clint Davis, United States Forest Service, speaks on "Development and Protection of North Georgia's Natural Resources." At the breakfast program, D. M. Therrell, historian of the club, will report on the club's activities of the year, and then members will take a five-mile hike to the summit of Blood mountain, highest point along the Georgia section of the Appalachian trail. Lovejoy Harwell, chairman of the trails and shelters committee, will conduct the hike.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—Southern and southwestern witnesses continued today to ply the Civil Aeronautics Authority with arguments favorable to establishment of an airline between Atlanta, Ga., and Amarillo, Texas.
Authority for operation is sought by Trans-Southern Airline, Inc., and Braniff Airways, Inc.
Representative Terry, Democrat, Arkansas, endorsed the route and asked that it include stops not only at Fort Smith, but at Little Rock, Russellville and Searcy, Arkansas.
William R. Kent, of the Memphis, Tenn., Chamber of Commerce, said business and social interests of that city would welcome the service.

MARKER UNVEILED AT GRAVE OF FEW

Honor Paid One of Georgia 'Signers.'

BEACON, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(P)—William Few Christie, of Hastings, N. Y., unveiled a marker today at the long-lost burial place of his great-grandfather, Colonel William Few, one of two Georgia signers of the federal constitution. Dedicating the marker, Messmore Kendall, of New York city, national president of the Sons of the American Revolution, asserted American participation in current European hostilities would "end the principals of freedom on which this country was founded and for which Colonel Few fought so valiantly."
The colonel, whose grave was discovered this summer, represented Georgia in the United States senate, later served as a New York state senator. He was a founder and president of the Bank of Saving of New York.

NAZIS REPORTED RUSHING TROOPS, PLANES TO WEST WALL

ALLIES' REJECTION OF A FINAL PEACE PLAN ANTICIPATED

Air Force To Be Ready To Unleash Attacks If Hitler's 'Last Concrete' Proposal Is Scorned.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG JR.
BERLIN, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Germany tonight was reported rushing all available troops and warplanes to the western front in anticipation of the western Allies' rejection of a "last concrete peace proposal" which Fuehrer Adolf Hitler will announce in a speech to the reichstag Friday noon.

Within the next two or three days, it was said, the greater part of Field Marshal Hermann W. Goering's air force that engulfed Poland will be poised in the west, awaiting Hitler's word to unleash devastating attacks.

The order from Hitler, according to well-informed Nazis, depends entirely upon the reaction of Great Britain and France to his Friday speech.

Troops Rushed Up.
Travelers arriving in Berlin tonight from the west told of long trains and motor convoys moving westward.

Tens of thousands of troops were said to be moving into positions in the west wall of fortifications.

These forces are intended to carry out a threat of totalitarian war, including big-scale air attacks on the British fleet and perhaps industrial centers of the Allies, which Hitler is expected to make before the reichstag deputies.

Hitler already has completed his speech, having waited until he had studied British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement before the house of commons Tuesday, but may make last-minute alterations as he usually does.

Will Propose Peace.
Nazi leaders said the speech would be "one last concrete peace proposal," with the alternative of a merciless war to the finish with Britain and France bearing sole responsibility for the consequences.

Hitler's Friday speech will be his sixth before the reichstag since February 20, 1938, the fifth anniversary of Nazism's rise to power. On September 1 he announced to the reichstag that the German army was driving into Poland and that he was putting on an army uniform to "take it off only after victory."

Hitler, determined to continue his "peace offensive" despite Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statements before the house of commons Tuesday, but may make last-minute alterations as he usually does.

No Mere Peace Plea.
"It will be no mere peace plea," said an official in close touch with the chancellery.

If the Fuehrer holds out the offer of a small independent Polish state, it was believed that he would make it clear that such a state must have a government thoroughly "approved" by Germany and Soviet Russia.

If Britain and France refuse the offer—as most foreign observers and many Nazis admit seems inevitable—a small Polish state still may be set up under a German governor-general.

LATVIA GIVES REDS AIR, NAVAL BASES

Latvia, which lies between Russia and India and now is within the British sphere of influence.

A Soviet foothold in Afghanistan would give the Moscow regime a strategically important position in relation to India's northern frontier.

(Afghanistan, a nation of about 10,000,000 inhabitants, mostly Mohammedans, is poorly developed, with no railroads and few other forms of communication. Her northern area reputedly is rich in copper, lead and iron. Coal and some oil are found in other parts. Wool and skins are the principal exports.)

The Turkish delegation in Moscow, meanwhile, received new instructions from its government in reply to what was reported.

Liability to be Russian insistence upon absolute Turkish neutrality in the European war.

Tonight, Tass, official Soviet news agency, announced that Sukru Saracoglu, the Turkish foreign minister, and Ali Haidar Aktai, Turkish ambassador, were received yesterday in separate conferences by War Commissar Klementi E. Voroshiloff and Foreign Trade Commissar A. I. Mikoyan.

Russia, these reports said, told Turkey in effect to "choose between Russia and Britain" and demanded strict neutrality regardless of any pact she might enter with Britain and France.

Restriction on Warships.
In addition, the Soviet government was reported to be demanding that Turkey allow no foreign warships other than Russia's to enter the Black sea through the Dardanelles.

(In Istanbul, it was reported that Soviet leaders had told Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, as unofficial spokesman for the Balkan states, that Russia must have naval base rights at the Rumanian post of Constanza on the Black sea as well as the right to send troops through the Balkan countries.)

(Turkish uneasiness over the delay in the Moscow negotiations was given expression in inspired Istanbul newspapers which asserted the Balkan states "are not consenting to the slightest sacrifice impairing their own dignity and honor.")

Soviet leaders, negotiating with Latvia and also Lithuania, apparently were unable to get in talks tonight with the Turks but conferences were expected to be resumed tomorrow. The oft-delayed Turkish negotiations had been held up the past three days await-

British Parliament Wary, Eyes Diplomatic Maneuvers

Labor Party Leader Urges Government Not To Be Too Hasty in Casting Aside Any Move by Hitler To Call Off War.

By ROBERT BUNNELLE.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(P)—Britain watched with a wary eye tonight the diplomatic maneuvering in European capitals which she believes may foreshadow a "call off the war move" by Adolf Hitler.

For the second successive day the possibility that Germany, through some neutral power, may in some way suggest a peace settlement occupied a big share of parliament's attention.

For the second day came a suggestion from a parliamentary leader that Britain should not be too hasty in casting aside such proposals if they are made.

Lord Snell, leader of the labor opposition, told the house of lords that he hoped that "the government would never refuse to listen to a real proposal for peace" and that it should show that "in addition to being a nation of shopkeepers, we are also a nation of pathfinders of a way to a durable peace."

A similar suggestion was made in commons yesterday by former Prime Minister David Lloyd George.

Urges Real Peace.
Snell emphasized that Britain was bound "to see to it that when peace comes it is a real peace and not merely a truce during which anybody who wished could rearm and prepare himself to new acts of aggression."

Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, told the lords that Britain "certainly should always be glad to see friendly relations between the two great neighbors, Russia and Turkey, which we believe need not in any way conflict with the closest relations of this country and Turkey, or between Turkey and France."

The foreign secretary's remarks came at a time when a Turkish military mission is in London discussing military and other matters of mutual interests with the British.

Halifax also emphasized that Britain regarded the Polish government in exile established in France as "the legal Polish government."

Will Examine Proposals.
Halifax declared that if Britain receives "peace" proposals, "we shall certainly examine them with care and we shall measure them against the principles for which we have taken up arms."

The possibility of peace proposals, negotiation and what the British-French Allies might accept. See Offer Without Ultimatum.

Those circles expressed belief Hitler might be able to meet British conditions for presenting proposals without an ultimatum character, but some doubt was indicated as to whether the Allies would accept whatever assurances or guarantees Hitler might offer.

The second group, the Conservative 1922 committee, described by the authoritative British Press Association as the most influential body in Commons, also held a discussion but no announcement was made of a decision and members were cautioned to say nothing of what occurred.

The Parliamentary Labor party also held a caucus on the proposals but decided to meet again tomorrow.

Diplomatic quarters expressed the belief that Russia would ask transit privileges through Lithuania, Latvia's southern neighbor. Similar privileges were secured from Estonia.

Lithuanian Foreign Minister Jozas Urbys flew back to Kaunas, his capital, unexpectedly in a special plane today presumably for instructions.

(The Lithuanian telegraph agency in Kaunas said Urbys would make another trip soon to Moscow to continue his conversations with the Russians.)

Claim Move Is at Nazis.
Diplomatic sources said that although the Soviet press accused Britain of seeking bases in the Baltic, Russia's sudden diplomatic thrusts there primarily were designed to enhance her position against any possible German moves.

Finnish quarters said the occasion might arise for discussion of Finland's problems with Soviet authorities, but that no Finnish official had been invited to Moscow as yet. This was in response to reports Finland would be next to be invited to the Kremlin after Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

The Turkish delegation, which intended to stay only three days, has been here almost two weeks, its negotiations held up by the Russian-German consultations and the talks with the Baltic delegations.

In Contact With Allies.
The Turks have kept in close contact with the British and French embassies. Their government is allied with Britain and France in mutual assistance pacts in event of Mediterranean war and apparently they have figured in the hitch in negotiations.

Foreign Minister Saracoglu head of the Turkish delegation, today laid a wreath on Lenin's tomb in Red square. Tonight he and his associates were guests at a dinner at the Greek embassy, Turkey and Greece, once bitter foes, have become close friends.

LITH MINISTERS WILL RETURN TO MOSCOW

ITALY WON'T TAKE PEACE INITIATIVE, ROME ANNOUNCES

Communique Says British Press Reports of Mussolini-Inspired Talks Are Without Foundation.

ROME, Oct. 4.—(P)—Italy announced officially today that she would refrain for the present from taking the initiative in any efforts to restore peace to Europe.

A communique of the official Stefani News Agency declared the British newspaper reports that Premier Mussolini was studying plans for a peace conference were "without any foundation."

"Under present circumstances Italy will not take any initiative of this sort," the communique said.

Must Stand Fair Chance.
The statement confirmed the opinion previously held by informed Fascist circles that Italy would not link herself with any peace proposals unless convinced they had a reasonable chance of success.

When Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano returned Tuesday from a talk with Adolf Hitler in Berlin there was considerable speculation whether Mussolini would relay peace proposals from the Fuehrer to Britain and France.

Italian press dispatches described Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the house of commons yesterday as revealing a lessening of "British intransigence."

Fascist circles recognized, however, that there still might be a considerable gap between what Hitler might propose as a basis for peace negotiation and what the British-French Allies might accept.

See Offer Without Ultimatum.
Those circles expressed belief Hitler might be able to meet British conditions for presenting proposals without an ultimatum character, but some doubt was indicated as to whether the Allies would accept whatever assurances or guarantees Hitler might offer.

'Arms Embargo Aids Hitler,' Connally Shouts at Senate

Fiery Texan Pounds Desk in Demand for Repeal; Foes Equally Firm for Keeping Neutrality Law Unchanged; Debate Continues Today.

By MAX BOYD.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(P)—

The momentous senate debate as to whether repeal of the arms embargo would lead this country into war or keep it out produced these opinions today:

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan: The arms embargo is an "indispensable symbol" of non-involvement in Europe's war.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas: "Keeping the embargo is helping Hitler, Stalin and all the others spreading fire and the sword through Europe."

Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin: "Once we have taken sides through action by our government in order to make arms available to England and France, the pressure will be terrific to get us into the war."

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado: "If the American people will accept the great sacrifice called for in the Pittman bill (the administration's measure to repeal the embargo and require that all goods sold to warring nations be shipped in non-American vessels), a long and lasting peace will be their reward."

Debate Delays Ship Decision
Senator Tobey, Republican, New Hampshire: "By extensive debate on the arms embargo repeal section of the bill we are holding up passage of those sections designed to keep our ships out of the danger zones. We must put first things first."

Vandenberg, Connally and Tobey talked before packed galleries in the senate; the others over the radio.

Senator La Follette referred to Great Britain and France as "these partners who will soon be asking us to join them in another, worse of death and destruction," and said these countries had helped to strangle every effort toward democracy in Germany and thus became "the illegitimate parents of Nazism."

Ethiopia Betrayed Cited.
He mentioned their conduct concerning Ethiopia, Czechoslovakia and Poland and said it was not a record to inspire confidence and trust.

La Follette expressed the opinion it was "just so much eye-wash" to say that "unless we get into this war and bring about a victory for Great Britain and France that the Nazis will begin to attack nations in this hemisphere."

"I do not believe any nation or group of nations can arise from the ashes of war's destruction to challenge the most powerful nation on the face of the globe," he added.

He said there was no mistake about it; that this country could have an "invulnerable" hemisphere.

Connally gave the packed senate galleries a taste of desk-pounding oratory in support of the administration's neutrality revision bill, which would repeal the ban on arms sales to warring nations and require that all exports to such countries be carried in non-American ships.

Taking the floor after congratulating the Texan on his address, Vandenberg closely followed his prepared manuscript. The subject before the senate was a "desperately vital" one, he said, and he wanted to make no unprepared observations.

More Debating Today.
Senators Nye, Republican, North Dakota, and Overton, Democrat, Louisiana, opponents of repeal, and Schwelb, Democrat, Washington, an advocate of repeal, were scheduled to continue the discussion on the senate floor tomorrow. Many senators predicted it would take two or three weeks, at least, to reach a vote.

Even if the senate passes the bill then, further house action will be required to make it law.

In the long senate debate today, Connally emphasized that the existing law, which imposes the arms embargo, permits American ships to carry all kinds of other goods to the nations at war in Europe. Unless congress adopted the administration measure, he contended, this would lead to the sinking of American ships by German submarines and drag the United States into the European conflict.

Vandenberg argued, however, that safeguards against the destruction of American vessels, and against other developments that might tend to involve this country in war, could be adopted without repealing the ban on arms sales.

Texan Hammers Desk.

Replying to statements that repeal of the embargo would benefit England and France, because they would be able to transport shipments while Germany could not, the Texan declared, with a blow upon his desk:

"If that be so, then keeping the embargo is helping Hitler, Stalin and all the others spreading fire and the sword through Europe."

Pointing to a map of Europe on the senate wall behind him, he asked why, if it was considered neutral for Holland to sell arms to the belligerents, it would be unneutral for this country to do so.

But Vandenberg contended that repeal of the ban on arms sales would amount to changing the rules in the middle of the game.

Vandenberg rejected "the notion" that America would be next in line for attack if "collectivism" won the current war.

"There will not be any next for any participations in this world war if it runs on to a conclusive military end because it will be so decimating and exhaustive for all concerned," he said, adding that, even if there were to be a "next" this country would do well to husband its resources and perfect its defenses.

Nations at Peace May Buy.
Connally pointed out that the embargo law permitted American manufacturers to sell arms to nations while they were at peace but halted sales once a country became engaged in war.

McConnell-Woodward Wedding Set for Wednesday, November 15

Full Military Ceremony To Unite Bridal Pair at Druid Hills Church

By Sally Forth.

THE traditional beauty of a full military ceremony will prevail at the marriage of Betty McConnell and her fiancé, Lieutenant Walden Francis Woodward, U. S. A., whose wedding plans are prominent among today's social announcements. The colorful ceremony will take place November 15 at 5:30 o'clock at Druid Hills Baptist church, where brass buttons and navy blue uniforms, symbolic of the United States army, will be in striking evidence.

Rev. Louis D. Newton will perform the marriage service, and a musical program will be presented by Mrs. James Reeves, soloist, and Mrs. John Felder, organist.

Mrs. Evan McConnell, sister of the bride-elect, has been chosen matron of honor, while Mary Virginia McConnell, one of the season's popular debutantes, will be maid of honor.

Bridesmaids will be Alma Elizabeth Wilby, Dorothy Petet, Jean Pentecost, Sarah Redmond, of Birmingham, Ala.; Lillian Klein and Anne Elizabeth Newton, of Forsyth.

Lieutenant Elliot Ursin, of Fort McPherson, will be best man for Walden, whose groomsmen will include a group of his fellow officers in the United States army, who are Lieutenant Dick Hill, Lieutenant Merle Smith, Lieutenant Wallace Brucker, Captain Joseph H. Harpe, David S. Dillard, Lieutenant H. W. McClelland, all of Fort McPherson, and Lieutenants Thomas McCrary and Raymond Hill, of Fort McClelland.

Ushers will be Dr. Cosby Swanson, who attended Betty's father as groomsmen in his wedding; Remington McConnell, Emmett Barlow, Walker Benson, Bill Davis, Andrew Ramsey and Forrest and Carroll McConnell, of Montgomery, Ala.

Wellington McConnell will give his sister in marriage, and after speaking their vows, the bridal couple will leave the altar passing beneath an arch of gleaming sabers held by the groomsmen.

Sentiment surrounds the wedding ring to be used in the forthcoming ceremony, the circle having been a prized possession in the bride-elect's family since the Civil War. The ring's history was begun when Betty's maternal grandfather and his twin brother were given duplicate gold bands by a young lady of their acquaintance before they left for the war. The twin brothers later married first cousins, who received the rings at their respective weddings. Betty's mother, the former Sallie Bohannon, received the ring when she became the bride of Sam McConnell, so Betty will be the third bride to wear it.

The band is so wide that a jeweler has been engaged to cut it into three rings, which will be given to Betty and her cousins, Wellington McConnell and Billy Burnside. Thus, the heirloom will continue its existence in three new channels.

First among the round of parties in compliment to Betty is the luncheon at which Mrs. Marion Benson will entertain November 9 at 4 o'clock at her home on Springdale road.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell Newton will entertain at their home in Forsyth for Betty on November 10.

Mrs. Mark Pentecost and her daughter, Jean Pentecost, will compliment the bride-to-be and her fiancé at an evening party on November 11.

Mrs. Denny Petet and her daughter, Dorothy Petet, will entertain for Betty at a luncheon on November 13.

ATLANTA Junior League's steal the spotlight in the October issue of the National Junior League magazine, "Early Americana," the story with illustrations by Elizabeth Thompson, deals with the finding of bones of Indians who wintered on St. Simons and Sea Island, on the Georgia coast. The airport site on St. Simons was, in all probability, the site of an Indian village.

In the "Family Album" pictures of the portraits of Thomas Dickens Arnold and Adeline Moore Clarke, great-grandparents of Mrs. Samuel N. Evans Jr., the former Eleanor Maude, occupy top positions on one of the pages. Mr. Arnold was born in Spotsylvania county, Virginia, in 1798. At 14 he was a drummer boy in the War of 1812, and was elected to congress from Tennessee on the Whig ticket in 1831.

The lovely face of Mrs. Green Dodd Warren appears on a page in the magazine as director of Region No. 5 of the American Junior League Association.

Pictures of Robyn and Frank Walsh, taken on their honeymoon at Sea Island, are published in the October issue.

"Mexican Footnote" is authored by Margaret Stovall, who gives excellent suggestions about motoring to and through Mexico, and what to take in the way of refreshments on the long drives to and from various points. She illustrated the article with a picture of natives at the Indian market at Toluca.

Talented Martha Hodgson Ellis contributed a poem entitled "Wild Grapes," which reads as follows:

The dark grapes fallen from the muscadine
Make with their neighbor-leaves a new design
In age-old tapestry of earth and sun.

Across the golden warp the shadows run,
Weaving the elbowed pattern of the vine.

In this still, intimate air, senses entwined;
The warm grapes taste of sun, the sun of wine,
And time is lost or has not yet begun.

This year and last and those to be are one,
Merged in the yellow fragrance of the pine.

Martha also furnished the photograph illustrating the article written by Betsy Beeler Creechmore, of Knoxville, which tells of the footsteps of joy on the mountains.

WITH debutante activities here gaining impetus daily, Sally was interested to learn that Columbus also boasts a bevy of charming buds.

Making their formal bows to society in the neighboring city this fall are Miss Ann Wynn Chancellor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Chancellor; Miss Janet Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bowers; Miss Beth Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Knight; Miss Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith; Miss Elvie Scarbrough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Scarbrough; Miss Rebecca Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Knight; and Miss Katherine Averett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford M. Averett.

Reason For Overweight May Be Psychological

By Ida Jean Kain.

That old theory about over-weights being happy-go-lucky seems to have been all wrong. It is now the conviction of some of the leading medical authorities that the overweight is anything but happy—that she is more likely to be a person who is downright bored with life and who takes to overeating as an escape from boredom.

Is that true of you? It is apparently true of a great many women. And, in that case, the solution is not merely to go on a diet, but also to fill your life with so many other interests that eating is relegated to its proper place.

At two o'clock one morning, one of these unhappy overweighters quit fighting insomnia and put her story into a letter. . . . She weighed more than 200 pounds and she couldn't get her weight down! Her size was so acutely embarrassing to her that she was becoming a recluse. There was one organization she was keenly interested in, but she couldn't make any effort to belong because she thought the members wouldn't want her. She didn't seem able to do any of the things she really wanted to do. Being very intelligent, she recognized that she had turned to constant eating to assuage a general dissatisfaction. As a result, she was gaining more weight and life appeared utterly futile.

But she was game enough to try again! This letter, written in the lonely hours, was intended as a pledge to herself to persevere on her determined course. She had to get her weight down in order to re-establish her self-respect! It goes without saying that she dieted, but the amazing thing is the part played by outside interests in the subsequent weight reduction. She succeeded in losing 10 pounds of weight, and as soon as she had done that, she made a definite effort to participate in worthwhile activities. She joined study groups and other women's organizations. And the more interested she became in their activities, the easier it became to stick to her reducing program. Just one year later, she wrote a very different letter. . . . "Tonight

Designed to Slenderize Your Hips

By Barbara Bell.

Thoroughly practical for housework, tailored enough to be made up in street fabrics, too, this pattern (1835-B) is exactly the kind you like, if you require a large size. It is carefully detailed to give you the lifted bustline and narrow hips that are chief essentials in a slenderizing dress. And, of course, as you know, there's no dress so satisfactorily and successfully slenderizing as the dress made individually for you. That's why so many smart women in the 36-to-52 size range wear their own, with simple, charming patterns like this. It includes a helpful step-by-step chart to guide you.

For house wear, this tailored dress makes up nicely in ginghams, linen or chambray. For street wear, thin wool, jersey or flat crepe are good choices for it.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1835-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/8 yards of 35 or 36-inch fabric. Collar and revers in contrast require 5-8 yard, 2 1/2 yards bias fold to trim as pictured.

Price of pattern, 15c. Do not send stamps.

Vitamin A Helps Body Maintain Immunity

By Dr. William Brady.

There is no scientific evidence that vitamin A is of any greater importance in maintaining normal immunity or freedom from illness or in preventing any specific infectious disease than is any other vitamin or any essential nutritive element. If the intake of vitamin A is less than the body requires then the body will be that much less capable of maintaining normal immunity (we do not speak of "resistance" because no one knows what that may be, other than immunity as this is recognized and to a degree measured scientifically). But the same thing may be said of the intake of any other vitamin or of calcium or phosphorus or iron or iodine or sulphur or protein or fat or starch.

The specific part played by vitamin A in building or maintaining immunity consists in keeping the mucous membranes throughout the body in normal condition. Absence or insufficient intake of A, in animal or man, manifests itself by formation of "stratified keratinizing epithelium" instead of the normal soft columnar epithelium lining the respiratory, alimentary, urinary and genital tracts, the eyelids, etc. Mucous membrane of that sort is irritable and more readily susceptible to penetration or invasion by bacteria. Restore vitamin A to the diet and, if the degeneration has not progressed too far, the epithelium of the mucous membranes will recover its normal condition, and the individual will again have the protection of this "first line of defense" against infection.

How much ground there may be for the belief that vitamin A deficiency may be a cause of kidney stone or bladder stone in some cases, I do not know. In animal experiments kidney stone may be produced by a diet lacking vitamin A, and the stones so produced may later disappear when vitamin A is restored to the diet. Whether this observation applies to kidney or bladder stone in human beings is a question. Here again, no possible harm can be done by the therapeutic test in any case—the patient must take at least 100,000, better 200,000 units of vitamin A daily, preferably natural vitamin A (four or eight capsules daily) over a period of at least two months, to determine whether any improvement is brought about.

Some good oculists now prescribe vitamin A as an adjunct in the treatment of numerous eye troubles which may depend at least in part upon nutritional deficiency. Patients in the early stage of cataract frequently report marked improvement in vision when they have taken an optimal ration of A for some time, but whether that is coincidental with the course of cataract or possibly due to the vitamin A, we may know five years hence.

Sometimes Score DependsonYour Opening Lead

By Harold Sharpsteen.

What a whale of a difference an opening lead makes in the outcome of a deal of bridge is repeatedly demonstrated in tournament play.

Some players may score 13 tricks with no difficulty, while others have trouble trying to make the game with the same hand. It is not always a simple question of skill that wins 13 tricks where others fail.

Nine times out of 10 it is the difference in opponent's opening lead. For instance, practically all North-South players arrive at a four-heart contract with the following duplicate deal:

N
S-8 6 4 3 2
H-Q
D-K J 10 9 7 5
C-9

W
S-A 9 7
H-J 5 3
D-2
C-A Q J 8 6 4 C-K 10

E
S-H A K 10 9 7 3
D-A Q
C-7 5 3

North and South bid diamonds and hearts, East-West bidding Spades and Clubs. East having bid spades, West opens the ace of his partner's suit, a logical opening lead, under the circumstances. But declarer makes the very first lead, puts dummy in with the Heart Queen on the second tricks and leads back another spade to ruff again. Then South picks up the remaining outstanding trumps.

My Day: What Are the Goals Of Our Schools?

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

SEATTLE, Wash.—It certainly is fun to visit one's children. I found myself marveling at the strength of my youngest grandchild yesterday. He is the most friendly, happy baby I have seen in a long while. As he sat in his father's lap at breakfast this morning, I couldn't help noticing how alike the two heads are in shape, though I can't say I have ever been able to see close resemblances in features when a baby is only six months old. The older children are fascinated by him and when he grows up I suppose it will be hard to keep them from spoiling him.

Anna, Sister and I took a walk yesterday afternoon with the two Irish setters. "Jack" never forgets me and greeted me warmly, but "Jill" is a fickle lady and took very little interest in my arrival, but she has no objection to being petted, which some will say is a woman's trait.

My trip out this time was very uneventful, though the rain and fog kept us two hours in Billings, Mont., which gave us a chance to go to a hotel. I had a bath at 5 a. m., and breakfast at the airport at about 6:30 mountain time, which was 5:30 Pacific time, and this meant I was very pleased when we sat down to lunch here in Seattle. I don't think one feels really weary until evening, but I have to own that I was practically falling asleep standing up when I finally went to bed at 9:30 p. m.

I hope that the October issue of the Survey Graphic will be read by everyone who can possibly get a copy. It deals with the schools of our country and tries to answer some of the questions which most of us have been asking ourselves these last few years. You cannot see a great deal of our young people without being concerned over what our system of education really accomplishes for them. In this October number are observations of 31 expert educators and journalists who try dispassionately to answer three questions with which we are all concerned.

1. What are goals of our schools? Are they meeting the tests of American education in the American way?

2. Are our children learning how to think for themselves as citizens of a democracy, or are they likely to fall in line behind a rabble rouser?

3. Can we cut across economic and racial barriers and really provide equal opportunities for education for every young man?

Some of us know, for instance, that approximately 200,000 children in the U. S. A. did not attend school last year because there either was no school owing to the poverty of their neighborhood, or they belonged to a family which was too poor to provide them with clothes and books, etc. We also know that because of economic conditions in certain parts of our country, the school year has been curtailed, in some cases only a few weeks, but in some cases several months.

It is true that some great men succeeded without schooling, but most of them somewhere along the line came in contact with a great teacher who pointed out the way whereby they might educate themselves. In many places we are giving little thought to the development of great teachers today. We think more about curtailing their salaries than we do about improving their qualifications. A really good teacher can never be paid, and they do not develop well on starvation wages.

Do ideas come at your command when you're needing a suggestion for something new and different for lunch or dinner? Or do you sit with pencil in hand trying hard to capture a flitting, elusive idea?

Perhaps these hints will be of help to you in getting the needed variation into some of your meals. Instead of smothered liver and onions, why not try a casserole of baked liver with vegetables.

Mother Worries About Bashful Daughter

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Here is a mother's big worry: My daughter, 18, a senior in high school, doesn't make friends easily and doesn't try to make friends because she is painfully bashful. She has never had a date, doesn't know a boy well enough to expect a date, and while she tells me boys mean nothing to her, she cannot hide her chagrin from me. She is a very pretty girl, wears her clothes well, is in no sense dumb, and while a little on the plump side, isn't fat. Just painfully bashful. Help a mother to help her daughter, please.

WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer: Do you remember the awkward years, dear woman, through which your daughter passed—say 12 to 14? Then was the time to ease her into her place with the young folks. Now you will have to work like a Trojan, and under cover, for daughter's pride and vanity are right on the surface with her bashful blushes.

When a mother admits that her daughter is plump, this probably means the public says she's roly-poly fat. So I suggest that you count the calories you serve her at breakfast and dinner, lopping off a few hundred for the starches and sweets consumed at school. The fatish gals always cheat, you know. And we're off to the races!

First: Instead of prodding your daughter about making friends, skip the painful references and put the hospitality of your home behind her. One friend invited for a meal occasionally, and several on high-days and holidays will not only initiate her into the fun of having young folks in her home where she's easy and comfortable, but will also widen her acquaintance as she meets the friends of her friends and sees how they make faith weather with each other.

Second: See that she learns to do well the things that will throw her with young people of both sexes and see that she excels in some sport, indoor or outdoor. The girl who plays a cracking good game of cards has invitations. Likewise if she stands up as tops in skating, swimming, dancing, tennis, golf, riding, the spotlight will play on her and the young people will seek her out.

Of course, publicity value shouldn't be the end and aim of games and sports. There's healthful exercise, fine for the fat gal; diverting interests necessary for the introverted gal, and the stimulation of competition that is always good for whatever ails any of us.

Old or young, we like to rate well with our public, and self-confidence always comes to us when we realize that we have the goods and can deliver. This is equally true in domestic, intellectual and athletics pursuits. The nice, warm glow of pride and satisfaction which suffuses us when we excel in anything is the very foundation of poise and self-confidence.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Indoor Gardens Add Gayety To Rooms

Most fascinating of all indoor gardens—and easiest to care for—is a terrarium.

Behind its glass walls, flowering, foliage plants grow lushly. If you keep your terrarium covered, it seldom needs watering.

As a companion piece for a terrarium, all winter you can enjoy the bright red berries, the evergreen leaves of the sprigs of partridgeberry, creeping cranberry, wintergreen.

A tiny Christmas tree grows quickly from a juniper berry and with the aid of moss, a winding path of pebbles, you can create a jolly little landscape.

Or, if you have a streak of curiosity, plant a mixture of tropical fern spores in a fish bowl. Or would you prefer to grow a flowering plant to perfection—a begonia, a trailing arbutus?

You can make a terrarium from any kind of glass bowl or container. Fill bottom with several inches of fiber or garden loam mixed with sharp sand. Moisten the soil well, then sow seeds or put in plants as you would in a pot or garden. (If you use moss, poke holes in it for your plantings.) Put glass cover on at once.

As a companion piece for your glass garden, how about the lovely trailing wax plant? It has green or variegated foliage, tiny white and pink flowers. And wouldn't you like a cheerful African violet, a striped pandanus for your light sunless window?

Our 40-page booklet, Success With House Plants and Flowers, has complete directions for making terrariums and dish gardens, growing flowering and foliage plants, bulbs, ferns. Tell what plants do best in light, sunny or sunless windows, how to care for them. Has tips on watering, re-potting, pests.

For day and night. Distinctive styling highlights this powder blue frock of novelty wool worn to perfection by Ginger Rogers in RKO-Radio's "Fifth Avenue Girl."

Now Is the Time to Think About Buying a New Hat

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—One of Ginger Rogers' dresses for "Fifth Avenue Girl" is a stunning powder blue frock of novelty wool. Designer Irene has created an expression of a jumper jacket on the one-piece dress with its unusual bodice treatment. Ecru silk serves as a soft collar and button-board. Three clusters of powder blue buttons hang on individual cords to create a final novelty touch.

Now is the time when every woman worthy of the name is thinking of—or, better still, buying—a new hat. A good model to copy is one worn by Louise Campbell in "The Star Maker." Of prune-colored felt, the high, brimmed crown is joined to the brim by several inches of shirring. The brim itself flares to one side, caught upward with jeweled grosgrain ribbon.

To those of you who like the pillbox model, there is an attractive one worn by Ellen Drew in "Geronimo." The hat is held to the head by a band of black grosgrain ribbon which crosses the crown and ties low on the neck. For additional trimming, there is a perky black bird. With the California sun still calling for warm weather clothes, Lana Turner chooses a playsuit with short, pleated trousers, built-up waistline, with suspenders worn over a long-sleeved seersucker blouse in red and white checks. The trousers, in natural-colored linen, have bands of the plaid stitched down each side. Accessories include flat moccasins in soft, white suede and over-shoulder bag in the same material. Around her hair, Lana ties a kerchief of the checked seersucker.

One of the pace setters of juvenile fashions in the film colony, Ann Rutherford, declares that playgrounds are no longer limited to the schoolhouse—they stay right into milady's wardrobe. "If you're fond of games, you'll have a field day this season," states the MGM starlet.

Buttons are likely to be spinning tops, tinkling bells, toy balls or even figures on playing cards, says Ann. Her new afternoon dress is of black moire with tiny red hearts marching down the front of the fitted jacket. Her two-piece slacksuit of navy gabardine has metal "jacks" buttoning the shirtwaist, with two tiny rubber balls dangling from the cord tie at the Peter Pan collar.

"The solution to the clothes problem for the 1940 Miss will be to raid little sister's toy box," giggles Miss Rutherford, who concludes, "turn fashion into a game and you'll be style-smart."

Girl Dancers
Traveled 6,000
Miles for Show

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Accepting the grand prize of the French government in behalf of the Rockettes, celebrated precision dancers at the music hall, John D. Rockefeller Jr. today praised the girls for their "good conduct in Paris, as record and rumor has it."

The prize was for one performance given by the Rockettes two years ago at the Paris International Exposition in competition with dancing troupes of other nations. They traveled 6,000 miles, to give one 16-minute performance.

An advisory board for Southern Air Lines' division of schools, which will be in charge of training the cadets in actual flying, has been formed. The board is composed of Colonel Jenkins, J. T. King, Harry G. Bone, Dr. Guy H. Wells, president of Georgia State College for Women; and Dr. Richard Binion.

Colonel Jenkins said physical examinations for the cadet applicants will get under way as soon as approval of Dr. Binion as medical examiner is received. Approval is expected immediately.

Plans also are under way to obtain an allotment of at least 10 students for the flying courses from the Georgia State College for Women. Under the government's civilian pilot training program, 3 per cent of the 11,000 flyers to be trained will be women.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP) Twelve thousand officers and men will leave port at 12 a. m. (Atlanta time) tomorrow on 29 warships and auxiliaries under command of Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews for duty in Hawaii.

Officially designated as a "security force" by the Navy Department, the fleet will include the 20,000-ton aircraft carrier Enterprise, flagship of Admiral Andrews, seven light and heavy cruisers, 18 destroyers and four destroyer tenders and mine sweepers.

Aboard the Enterprise are four squadrons of fighting, scouting, torpedo and bombing planes equipped to full war strength. With her flight and hangar decks literally jammed with planes, room was found today for a glider said to be the first craft of its type ever taken to sea by a carrier. It is to be used in practice flights at Honolulu.

All in the Game

—by Jack Troy

A lot more will be known about the Georgia football team after the game with Furman Friday night at Greenville, S. C. The Bulldogs apparently were none too impressive against The Citadel, a rather weak force.

But the Furman game is different. Dizzy McLeod's Purple Hurricane is not a club to take lightly. It actually outplayed Army in losing, 16-7.

Individually and collectively, observers point out that Furman is pretty rugged. There is a big and seasoned line and a fast, resourceful backfield.

Captain Roten Shetley, a bruising fullback, has completed 19 out of 32 passes and personally has made almost 200 yards rushing. He is backed up by two speed merchants, Martin and Lipscomb, and a pair of nifty blockers, Dan Martin and Joe Jenkins.

The line is strong from end to end and has reserve aid. This is not hearsay. The figures of the first two games show that Furman has something. The Hurricane routed Erskine and pushed the Army around all afternoon.

Georgia could hardly play a better game leading up to next week's intersectional struggle with high-ranking Holy Cross.

The Furman game bids to be a knock-knock encounter. And with Shetley the passer that he is Georgia can sharpen the air defense against the potent passing of Ronnie Cahill, of Holy Cross.

On offense, Georgia may operate as simply as possible in the hope of winning comfortably without necessarily having to show scouts anything. But from what you hear, it may take a few tricks to stop Furman.

Big item in Georgia's favor may be the return of the speedster Vassa Cate. If he is turned loose behind good blocking, it may not be necessary for Georgia to show anything else. Holy Cross already knows that Cate can step.

It seems Furman has been warned by scouts to guard principally against the passing of Billy Mims. But the running game may make a lot of passing unnecessary. At any rate, the game will tell a lot about Georgia. The line should get a pretty fair test.

IRISH ARE ALERT—SMART.

H. G. Salsinger, veteran sports editor who reported the Notre Dame-Purdue game for the Detroit News, says in a later column—

"Notre Dame was more alert than Purdue, and played smarter football.

"They still call Notre Dame the 'Lucky Irish,' but they were not lucky in beating Purdue, 3 to 0; they deserved to win.

"What the public describes as Notre Dame luck is more often Notre Dame smartness. Notre Dame teams win because they make fewer mistakes than their opponents. They make most of their own breaks. When opponents err Notre Dame knows how to take advantage of the errors.

"Notre Dame teams, like the teams of Fielding H. Yost, are opportunists. The late Knute Rockne once said: 'I'll take the opportunist team every time.'

Purdue tried a lot of laterals against Notre Dame and lost 26 yards on four of them. The last one led to Notre Dame getting in position to try the field goal which Kelleher made. There was a fumble and recovery by Purdue deep in its own territory and Notre Dame took the ball to the nine in four plays following a punt. Kelleher then came in, kicked the field goal and the Irish won.

It would seem that the Jackets on Saturday will face a sharp, hard-charging line and a resourceful Irish attack led by Saggau, Sitko and Sheridan.

And the Irish, on the other hand, are expected to face a more polished and a more clever attack than Purdue seemed to possess.

YANKS ARE LIKE IRISH.

The Yankees must be like the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. For, in the opening game of the World Series, it certainly was an opportunist team.

The first run was an opportunist proposition. Gordon scored all the way from first when it was apparent to almost everyone that he would stop at third.

The Reds may only have been stalling off the inevitable, but certainly Paul Derringer pitched the sort of ball that entitled him to win.

And so it must be that the Yankees aren't lucky; they're opportunists.

Ferinand's Corner: Deals amounting to almost $90,000 each were transacted by the Crackers and the Chattanooga.

FLASH GORDON SLIDES HOME WITH TYING RUN IN FIFTH

Acme Telephoto.

Alert Yankee base running probably won yesterday's World Series opener. Here is Flash Gordon sliding safely home with the tying run in the fifth inning. Catcher Ernie Lombardi reaches back vainly trying to put the ball on the Yankee second baseman while Umpire McGowan watches the action. Gordon scored from first on Dahlgren's double to left when Wally Berger, Cincy left fielder, threw the ball to second base instead of third, making it necessary for Second Baseman Linus Frey to relay the ball to the plate. Alert Coach Fletcher waved Gordon home on the play.

SANDY SANFORD INJURES MUSCLE

Ace Place-Kicker To Be Used Only in Emergency Against Rams.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 4.—(P)—Injury of a thigh muscle in his kicking leg today put Alabama's Sandy Sanford on the sidelines for anything but "emergency use" against Fordham in New York Saturday.

Trainer Jack Stuart, who said Sanford pulled a muscle previously injured in last Saturday's game, declared the goal-kicking end would be available for kicking purposes only against the Rams, if he got into the game at all.

"Good spirit but poor physical condition" was Coach Frank Thomas' estimate of the Tidemen. "We expect the boys to play a good game Saturday," Thomas said, "their spirit is high. But we're not sure they're in good enough physical condition to stop Fordham."

Three regulars—Captain Carey Cox at center, Halfback Billy Simmons and Tackle Bobby Wood—have been hospital cases more than a week. They are expected to play Saturday but have made little preparation for the game. Four reserves also are hurt.

Mehre Shifts Hovious, Hapes To 1st Team.

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Oct. 4.—(P)—Coach Harry Mehre tonight shifted Johnny "Junior" Hovious, Vicksburg, Miss., star of last week's victory over Louisiana State University, and the great sophomore, Merle Hapes, to his first team in running defense and offensive tactics for Saturday's game with Southwestern.

They were working behind the veteran line that caused L. S. U. so much trouble, in long scrimmages with the freshmen. Mehre spent much time in developing ground attacks, and in blocking and tackling which showed marked improvement. Another hard workout is scheduled for tomorrow morning before entraining.

Auburn Drills Hard On Pass Defense.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 4.—(P)—Fearful Tulane may resort to aerial tactics Saturday, Coach Jack Meagher drilled his Auburn Plainsmen thoroughly today in pass defense.

Two sets of varsity backs had more than ordinary success in breaking up passes made by a freshman team using Tulane formations.

Captain Milton Howell, Ernest Mills and Walter Chandler, guards; Malvern Morgan, center, and Alternate Captain Bill Nichols, tackle, turned in defensive performances today which railbirds rated variously as "fine" or "very impressive."

Saggau Runs Wild In Irish Scrimmage.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 4.—(P)—Left Halfback Bob Saggau, Fullback Joe Thesing and Right Halfback Lou Zontini ran wild today as Notre Dame's regulars trounced two reserve teams in preparation for Saturday's tilt against Georgia Tech. Saggau ripped off a quartet of long runs for four touchdowns; Thesing smashed through for two more and Zontini snaggd a duo of passes and raced 20 yards for a third.

Yankees No Super Club, Storms Bill McKechnie

"One Game Don't Win a Series," He Says; Ruffing and Derringer Are Praised.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.
NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(P)—"One game don't win a series. The Yankees are no super ball club. They can be beaten and I'll send Bucky Walters after them tomorrow."

It was "Deacon" Bill McKechnie, speaking as sole spokesman in behalf of his Royal Reds. He waved newspapermen away from the Cincinnati players, reminding the writers that he would do all the talking and cautioning photographers to take no pictures.

It was sweltering hot in the Reds' dressing room and the bespectacled 52-year-old leader of the Reds stripped down to his white shorts and undershirt before he began talking. Previously he had shooed the writers out of the room, pleading for a five-minute opportunity to talk to his players in private. "Both Ruffing and Derringer pitched a hell of a ball game," McKechnie began. "The breaks went it for the Yankees. We've won a lot of them the same way and that's what put us into the championship."

"One game don't mean a thing. It's winning the four of them that counts."

BERGER'S THROW?
Questioned as to the wisdom of Wally Berger's throw to Frey at second base, instead of throwing directly to the plate to cut off Joe Gordon's run in the fifth inning, McKechnie blurted out:

"That's one of those plays you don't anticipate. It may come up only 10 or 15 times a year. If Berger had thrown to Lombardi instead of to second, there would have been no score."

"I give the Yankees all the credit in the world. They played heads up ball. But we're still here. Don't overlook that." McKechnie said Berger, Cincinnati's left fielder, may not get into the game tomorrow because of his injured left foot. His big toe was injured by a foul tip with an abscess forming that had to be opened yesterday. Berger played with the tip of his shoe cut out to give the damaged toe more freedom.

LOMBARDI MAD.
"Beezer" Lombardi, the Reds' big catcher, was raging mad when he stormed into the dressing room. He ripped off his chest protector and hurled it in the air. Then he slammed down his mask, picked it up and threw it across the room after the chest protector. All the while he was cursing and mumbling to himself. He kicked his trunk a couple of times and then plopped himself down on top of it, the picture of disgust and rage. None of the Reds talked to each other, leaving all explaining to their manager.

Over in the Yankees' dressing room the world's champions were hilariously happy. Joe McCarthy moved into his private dressing room to receive congratulations from Postmaster General James A. Farley and from Governor Herbert Lehman. Behind them trooped in Jimmy Johnson, the fight manager, to extend his handshake and congratulations.

Nicholson Homers, Cubs Beat Chisox

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(P)—The Chicago Cubs took a thrilling, see-saw battle from their American League neighbors, the White Sox, tonight, 10 to 9, in 10 innings before a yelling crowd of 42,767, in the first game of their city championship series. Ell Nicholson tied the game for the Cubs with a two-run homer in the ninth.

GOTHAM HOTELS OVERCROWDED

World Series, Fair Cause Boom; Many Guests Are Turned Away.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(P)—A rush of World Series fans and late patrons for the last month of the New York World's Fair has brought one of the biggest booms in this city's history to New York hotels and restaurants.

With an estimated 500,000 rooms available—more than in any other city in the world—it is a rare day when any large number of hotels in New York have to turn away guests.

But that is just what is happening today. Inquiries at the reservation desks at 12 of the largest, having from 1,000 to 2,500 rooms each, showed they have waiting lists.

Many have put cots in banquet halls and other public rooms to take care of their overflow and are still turning away customers.

The World Series is only partly responsible, hotel men said, although they said there had never been such an influx of baseball fans since the Pittsburgh-Yankee series of 1927. In recent years there have been smaller out-of-town crowds because the games were between the two New York teams or with the visiting team from the far-away cities of Chicago and St. Louis.

Reduced prices at the World's Fair, plus unsubstantiated rumors that it might not be able to open next year because of war, despite the plans of its sponsors, and cool weather are reasons given by hotel managers for larger crowds to visit the exhibition grounds in Flushing.

A third important factor in drawing out-of-towners is the heaviest calendar of conventions in the city's history, hotel men said.

M'ADAMS FACES COWBOY FRIDAY

A pair of Jacks will be the trump card Promoter Virgil Warren will play Friday night at the Warren arena.

Promoter Warren announces he has signed Gentleman Jack Purdin, the Oklahoma cowboy, and Jack McAdams to meet in the feature match.

Cyclone Burns, the Kansas City windstorm, meets Eddie Pope, the Boston grappler, in the semi-final, while in the first match Larry Tillman, of New York, takes on Andrew Spellos, young Greek Olympic grappler.

Warren announces Friday's show will inaugurate a southern light-heavyweight championship tournament, and reveals many of the game's leading 175-pounders will enter the event, which will last more than two months. A handsome belt will be put up as the prize. Right now there is no official champion in this division, although there are a number of claimants who have no actual basis for their claims.

Purdin has won his two starts here in impressive fashion and promises trouble for McAdams.

BALE FAN DIES.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 4.—(P)—Chester Amnavever, 45, dropped dead as Fort Worth scored the winning run in the Dixie Series finale with Nashville. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Bucky Walters Due To Oppose Pearson In 2d Battle Today

Bill Dickey's Single Scores Keller, Who Had Tripled, With Winning Run in Ninth; Both Teams Superb Afield.

Goodman walked, stole second on a low throw from Catcher Dickey which escaped Gordon, and raced home on McCormick's ground-ball single which slid past third base into left field.

There were loud cheers as this development sent the spirited, full-of-fight Reds away in front. But back came the Yankees in the fifth to tie it up. With one down, Gordon fired a single past third base. Up came Babe Dahlgren, the successor of Lou Gehrig on first base and generally regarded as the "weak sister" among the bombers of the Yankee firing line.

He Produced.
He produced. He shot a fast ground ball along the third-base line, which was fairly by no more than three feet. Bill Werber made a futile stab at it, but the ball kept right on going all the way to the left-field corner. Gordon charged past second, rounded third and headed for home as Wally Berger finally retrieved the ball and threw to second base.

Dahlgren reached second safely, Lonnie Frey took Berger's throw, wheeled and pegged to the plate. Catcher Ernie Lombardi had to leap to pull down the toss, and Gordon raced home safely under him. There was considerable discussion afterward as to what might have occurred if Berger had made the throw directly to the plate, instead of paying attention to his infield mates and trying to stop Dahlgren from running out his two-bagger successfully.

After that, however, both pitchers took over the show. From the fifth through to the windup, Ruffing retired every man in order. Thirteen came up—and 13 went right down again. All told, he gave up only four hits to the fighting Rhinelanders.

Derringer was touched for only half a dozen blows. He fanned seven members of the vaunted Yankee hitting lineup, getting everyone once with the exception of Joe DiMaggio and Red Rolfe. After the Yankees scored their run in the fifth, he retired 12 men in order, until he came face to face with Keller in the ninth.

Had Been Retired.
Rolfe, first up in the final chapter, had been retired on a spectacular play by McCormick, the Reds' first sacker, just beating Rolfe to the bag after retrieving his hot smash.

Keller came up, caught hold of a fast ball and smashed a triple deep to right center on the fly. Ival Goodman raced over in a desperate try to make the catch near the 407-foot marker on the bleachers. The ball, however, had been hit on the dead run at the time and couldn't hold onto it. Before Craft recovered the ball and pegged it in, Keller had slid into third safely.

The Reds' board of strategy did the "smart" thing in this case and purposely passed DiMaggio. It might have been the better strategy to have done the same with Dickey, noted as a hitter particularly dangerous in the clutch. They elected to pitch to Dickey, however. He watched a ball go by, fouled off the next pitch for strike one, then lit into Derringer's following series. His line hit shot over second base and landed in center field, yards away from the frantically running Craft, and Keller carried the winning run across.

One record was tied during the afternoon when the Reds finished with only one man on base for the day. This was first set by the New York Giants' way back in 1911, and has been equaled several times since then.

Little to Choose.
There was little to choose between the masterful work of the two pitchers. Derringer, however, had to carry the load without the support—at times almost miraculous—backed up Ruffing's performance.

Three times the American leaguers' infield pulled Big Red out of spots that might have caused trouble. In the second inning, after McCormick opened the frame with the first of the two singles which made him the hitting leader of the afternoon, Rolfe started a twin-killing on Ernie Lombardi's bounce to third. This might have been only a force-out, however, if anyone but the big, slow Reds' catcher was trying to beat the play to first.

In the third, came another double-play, this time one of the "daffy" variety. With one out, Myers singled to right. Derringer sent a bouncer straight through the pitcher's box. The ball hit Ruffing's bare hand, then kept right on rolling beyond second base. Crosetti dashed over, back of the bag, stopped the ball with his bare hand, and without straightening up, flipped it to Gordon, who tossed to Dahlgren to complete the play. Ruffing got an assist, and so four men figured in one double play.

CRAFT OPENS.
Craft opened the Reds' fifth with an infield single, and again Ruffing was on the way to trouble. But Gordon made a beautiful play on Myers' ground smash, tossed to Crosetti, who pegged to Dahlgren, and the threat was over.

Tomorrow's second game of this 1939 series, in which the Yankees, although 1-3 favorites to make more baseball history by winning their fourth straight world championship, are up against their toughest foe in four years, will see another duel of right-handers.

The Reds, as expected, nominated as their moundsman Bucky Walters, the converted third-baseman who was the sensation of the National League this year with 27 victories. The Yankees, temporarily minus the services of their

'Lucky Teter Day' Set at Fair Sunday

Honoring Lucky Teter as the world's champion daredevil, Mike Benton, president of the South-eastern Fair, has set Sunday aside as "Lucky Teter Day" at the 25th annual exposition, he announced last night.

In response to the singular recognition, Teter said he would have 34 Hell Drivers on the speedway in front of the main grandstand Sunday afternoon to race, crash and smash new stock automobiles—just like the cars driven on Atlanta streets—and motorcycles.

Because of the tremendous response from the thousands who enjoyed last Sunday's performance of the Hell Drivers, many of the top thrillers will be repeated Sunday in addition to the long list of new stunts.

Harry Woolman will attempt the "Suicide Leap." Ken Arnold will ride one of the automobiles in the head-on collision of two automobiles at an impact of 80 miles per hour; Lucky Teter will defy death when he remains at the wheel of an automobile as it plunges into space over 14 cars and a truck parked in his path; Lucky will attempt his sensational crash roll in which he sends an automobile end-over-end and side-over-side. At least 28 spectacular automobile and motorcycle thrillers will be attempted by the Hell Drivers.

Lucky will be at the wheel of a stock sedan when it crashes through two flaming plank walls loaded with high explosives in the thundering "Dynamite Drive." Many of the thrillers to be seen here Sunday were devised recently for the movies.

Sunday's two hours and 30 minutes of spine-tingling thrills will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

In addition to the Hell Driver show, the popular Georgia Tech Band will play at the grandstand.

veteran southpaw, Lefty Gomez, only recently out of the hospital after straining a side muscle, will counter with Monte Pearson, stylish curve-baller from California.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds, who greeted baseball writers at the door of the club's dressing room with the announcement he would do all the talking, wasn't particularly downhearted about the defeat. "The breaks decided it," he shouted, "and let me tell you these Yankees are no super ball club."

Joe McCarthy, the Yankees' big-jawed pilot, joined McKechnie in complimenting both pitchers. "It was just a case of who got the runs—and we did," said McCarthy. The game was completed in 1 hour, 33 minutes, one of the fastest times in the memory of diamond old timers. It could not be determined immediately whether this was a record, since available books have no listing of game times.

Tech Looks Good Except on Defense Against 'Irish' Passes

3 FULL TEAMS LEAVE TONIGHT FOR SOUTH BEND

Final Drill Today To Be Devoted to Defense Against Air Attack.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY
Georgia Tech continued rough work for Notre Dame yesterday with another hard scrimmage, both offensively and defensively, and when it was over, Jacket supporters breathed a sigh of relief as no injuries resulted from the last two knocking sessions.

A squad of 35 players—three full teams plus a couple of cripples—will leave tonight at 6:30 for South Bend. A pep meeting has been set by the Tech student body and several hundred are expected to be at the station when the team leaves.

The Yellow Jackets will be at near full strength for their opening battle of the season. Only Charlie Burroughs, reserve end, and Earl Wheby, senior wingback, are on the injured list and the latter will be able to play if needed. Burroughs is definitely out with a twisted knee.

Yesterday's scrimmage was a twin of Tuesday's. The Jacket varsity smeared Irish plays, looked good on offense but failed to impress coaches on pass defense.

DRILL ON PASS DEFENSE.
Therefore, Coach Alex will likely spend most of today's practice working on defense against an air attack.

Several times yesterday red-shirted backs completed passes for long gains in the scrimmage and coaches shook their heads and wondered just what the Irish would do if they take to the air. Roy McArthur, who scouted the enemy last Saturday, said Elmer Bosch wasn't throwing as well as usual but anybody can have a bad day.

The Jackets' own passing game, while not discouraging by any means, was not up to the high standard of Tuesday. Johnny Bosch wasn't throwing as well as usual but anybody can have a bad day.

Hawk Cavette's kicking never looked better and one thing is certain about Saturday's game. Odds are 10-1 Tech will out-punt the Irish. Cavette also blocked well from his guard's post.

DYKE SUBS AT TACKLE.
Elmer Dyke, big guard, was tried out at tackle during the workout. He has previous experience at the position and Coach Alex may shove him in there is one of his regular tackles get hurt Saturday.

Big George Webb continued to show improved defensive play at his end position and has railbirds speculating on whether he or Paul Sprayberry would start the game. Webb is a better offensive end, but Sprayberry has more experience on defense.

The rest of the Jacket lineup against the Irish will probably have Rob Ison at the other flank, Charlie Wood and Eston Lackey, tackles; Cavette and Bob Aderhold, guards; Jimmy Wright, center; Bosch, tailback; Billy Gibson, wingback; Howard Eder, fullback, and Captain Buck Murphy, blocking back.

Players making the trip are: Ends—Ison, Webb, Bartlett, Sprayberry, Arthur, Clay, Burroughs.
Tackles—Wood, Lackey, Mureth, Wild, Holly, Ray, Dyke.
Guards—Aderhold, Cavette, Sanders, Perkerson, Quigg, Dyke.
Centers—Wright, Beard, Sutton.
Blocking backs—Murphy, Shaw, Wilkins.
Tailbacks—Bosch, Beers, Bates.
Fullbacks—Eder, Gore, Plaster.
Wingbacks—Gibson, Pair, Wheby, Nettles.

PURPLE 'B' TEAM DEFEATS FULTON

Boys' High B team kept up the good pace set by the varsity and defeated Fulton High, 7 to 0, Wednesday afternoon at Ponce de Leon Park.

A short pass, Eizel, a halfback, to Cohen in the second quarter, netted the only touchdown of the game.

Boys' High had a slight advantage in ground gained with eight first downs against five for Fulton, but the pass play was the only dangerous threat of either team.

Fulton threw six passes and completed three, while the Purple completed only one of three attempted, but the one pass which clicked was good enough to win the game.

Carolina Teams Gain 4-Ball Golf Finals

Dunkleberger, Alexander Whip Alabama Pair; Hall, Ford Conquer Floridians.

By ROY WHITE.
Carolina's two golf teams, Bobby Dunkelberger, the southern amateur champion, and Skip Alexander, from North Carolina, and Francis Ford and Harold Hall, from South Carolina, will battle 36 holes today on the No. 1 East Lake course for the third annual southern states four-ball championship.

Dunkleberger and Alexander, shooting nine strokes under par for the day's best score, eliminated Alabama's team of Scuddy Horner and Weldon Doe, the 'Bama state champion, 6-5, after leading three up at the intermission.

South Carolina's entry in the championship match was not so easy for Hall and Ford had to shoot par golf on the 37th hole to beat Florida's No. 1 team of Crawford Rainwater and Bill Stark, in the only extra hole match of the tournament thus far.

The North Carolina team with the southern champion, Dunkelberger, leading the way, is the spectator's favorites to win the title this afternoon. They have played sub par golf all week and the team works unusually well together.

South Carolina's team, given only a small chance to survive the second round played spectacular golf, the brand which keeps the crowd following every step of the way, and entered the finals as a dark horse.

Alexander led the way for North Carolina in the morning round with a par 71, but it was Dunkelberger's fine play in the afternoon round which clinched the battle on the back nine.

From a spectator's view, the Florida-South Carolina match was easily the best.

Rainwater and Stark led two up after 18 holes and had a best ball of 69, two strokes under par. The pair worked well together to gain the two-hole advantage.

ONE-UP MARGIN.

In the afternoon round, the Floridians maintained a one-up advantage at nine holes, despite some brilliant golf on the part of Hall and Ford's 60-foot putt which rolled into the cup at five for a birdie after he had missed an approach chip shot, was the best shot of the round.

Trailing one down going into the last nine, the Carolina entry had birdies at 10 and 11 and led one up, after a birdie at nine had cut the margin to one down.

Both Hall and Ford were in trouble at 13 and 15 and lost the holes, but Hall ran a long putt into the cup at 16 for a birdie victory which squared the match. He again ran a long putt into the cup at 18 for a half, after the Florida team had "gimmie" putts for par.

On the extra hole both Rainwater and Stark were in trouble with their drives, but made sensational recoveries only to lose the match on the green to Ford's deadly putting when it counted most.

Stark's long driving was outstanding in the match. His drive at 12 was 327 yards which was measured by one of the spectators. Again at 16 he had a drive and a nine iron to go pin high with his second. He overdrove the 18th green with a two iron.

Morehouse To Play Langston on Friday

Langston University, one of the outstanding southwest football aggregations, will be the opening opponent for Morehouse College, which will officially start their 1939 football schedule here Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park at 2 o'clock.

Coaches Forbes, Smith and Archer, of the Morehouse coaching staff, have worked diligently with a squad of newcomers to put them in the best possible condition for this game, as it will have an important bearing on the Maroons' national standing this season.

This game holds the interest of colored Atlanta because a graduate of Morehouse College coaches the Oklahoma outfit, which has licked the locals in their last few engagements. Zip Gales, rated as one of the best flankers ever to wear the Maroon colors, is head football mentor for Langston, an institution that he has carried to national recognition since taking over the coach's duties there eight years ago.

MUST FIGHT AGAIN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The executive committee of the National Boxing Association unanimously recommended today that last week's disputed featherweight fight between Joey Archibald, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Harry Jeffers, Baltimore, be re-fought within 30 days.

SMITHIES PLAY DECATUR TEAM AT BALL PARK

North Fulton Opposes Rome at Buckhead; Russell Vs. Hapeville.

By ROY WHITE.
Atlanta's prep football fans will have the choice of three fine games tonight in widely scattered sections of the city. Tech High plays Decatur at Ponce de Leon Park at 8 o'clock; North Fulton plays Rome at Buckhead at 7:30 o'clock, and Russell High meets Hapeville at 7:30 o'clock at East Point.

All three games have been moved up from Friday night due to the annual school holiday on account of school day at the South-eastern Fair.

G. M. A. and Elberton High will furnish the excitement for Friday with a 2:30 o'clock game on the College Park campus.

There will be little to choose between tonight's two games at Ponce de Leon and Buckhead.

North Fulton is just coming into its own in prep athletic circles and will be no pushover for any team this season. Rome has about the best prep team in North Georgia and will be plenty tough, but with Dick Gray and his mates clicking, North Fulton will certainly give the fans plenty of thrills.

SMITHIES CLICKING.
Tech High after a disastrous start against Marist College has come along fine, showing more improvement than any other team in the city and should be favored to trim Decatur tonight.

Decatur, winner of the North Georgia interscholastic conference last year, lost all except two of its varsity squad but has shown plenty of improvement since losing its opening game to Toccoa.

Decatur staged the greatest rally of any prep team in the city last week, in beating a strong Russell High team, 30-to-24, scoring two touchdowns in the last period to win.

Tech High looked particularly good in beating Savannah High, 20-to-0 last Friday night. The blocking of the Smithies was an outstanding feature, while the running of Forrest Smith and Billy Paschal was all that could be asked.

Boys' High, Commercial, G. M. A. and Marist will hold light drills today in the final preparation for Friday games.

PURPLE VS. SAVANNAH.

Boys' High, fearing a letdown as the team looks forward to the Marist game, October 13, plays an improved Savannah team Friday night at Savannah.

Marist faces one of South Georgia's toughest prep teams at Albany, Ga., Friday night. The Ivy Street Cadets have probably the hardest schedule in Atlanta, playing Boys' High, Rome, G. M. A., Richmond Academy, Columbus, Lanier and Glynn Academy, after Friday night's game at Albany.

Commercial also meets only the toughest in the state and tackles one of Richmond Academy's strongest teams Friday night at Augusta. The Richmond line averages over 200 pounds per man.

That Friday afternoon G. M. A. Elberton game at College Park should be well worth the while. The Cadets got away to a fine start last Friday in beating Heflin, Ala., 30-to-0.

The Cadets have a big strong line, which lacks only experience to rank with the best in the state. It will take a couple of more games for G. M. A. to reach good form.

HORACEK WINS LADIES' MEET

Mrs. Dorothy Sanford Horacek Jr. won low gross honors with a 90 in the weekly one-day ladies' tournament staged yesterday at Capital City.

Mrs. C. K. Liller took low net honors with an 80 and Mrs. P. G. Sanford proved to be the best putter, requiring 32 putts over the 18-hole route.

The Capital City golf committee announced that the season's closing event, originally scheduled for today, had been postponed until Saturday, October 7. There will be attractive prizes and all members are expected to participate.

BOWLING

The Beck & Gregg Hardware League will start bowling activities on the downtown alley this afternoon with six teams in the league roster.

George Hopkins, A. W. Bailey, Lewis Stevens, H. H. Harris, P. B. Strickland and H. H. Holt will be team captains for the 30 or more men and women who will compete in the league.

Clyde Cannon, chairman of bowling activities for the Junior Chamber of Commerce this season, predicts a highly competitive season for his group of 10 teams as they break into scheduled play this evening at the downtown alleys.

The Federal Reserve Bank bowling league will begin bowling next Thursday afternoon, according to D. I. Tignor, who has charge of the activities for the Bank Club.

Elizabeth Folk and Sara Thomson are aiding the Ansley Hotel team in winning games as they retain averages of 100 in the Ladies' Commercial league.

No Gehrig Bats Left, Admits Sad Bat Boy

DiMag Uses 36-Ounce Bludgeon; Yankees Break Most Bats When Leonard Pitched.

By WHITNEY MARTIN.
NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The slim, good-looking kid backed slowly up the dugout steps, staggering under the weight of one end of a huge bat bag.

Carefully, almost lovingly, he removed the big clubs one by one from the bag and aligned them perfectly on the flat board in front of the dugout.

"Lou's bat?" he repeated the question slowly, then: "There isn't any. He had a couple, but some of the boys used them and broke them."

We couldn't think of anything to say for a minute, and neither could Tim Sullivan, the 19-year-old youngster who is serving his fourth year as Yankee bat boy.

We both were thinking that the absence of Lou Gehrig's bat told a story more poignant than words. "We've got 46 bats here now," Tim ventured to break up an unpleasant train of thought. "We have had as many as 75, but they get broken."

FOURTH WORLD SERIES.
We were curious about those bats, so we pumped young Tim a little. Tim is in his fourth World Series, and he "hopes the Yankees will make it four straight."

"Joe DiMaggio uses the biggest bat, a 36-ounce," he advised. "Frank Crosetti uses the lightest, usually 32 ounces and sometimes 30."

"We average about one broken bat a day, the biggest number I've seen broken in a day was seven. That was just a couple of weeks ago when Dutch Leonard was pitching. He 'throws a knuckle ball. They swing hard at it and catch it on the handle. We al-

LEADS FURMAN FRIDAY NIGHT

Captain Toten (The Ripper) Shetley, a senior fullback, will lead Furman's Hurricane against the Georgia Bulldogs Friday night. Shetley calls signals, handles the plunging, does all the place kicking and much of his team's passing.

Hunnicuttt Brilliant In Georgia Workout

Malone, Woodruff To Miss Furman Game; Bob Nowell Executes Brilliant Blocks.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 4.—A long passing drill and a review of plays in dummy scrimmage finished Georgia's preparations today for its first game on foreign soil Friday night against Furman University in Greenville, S. C.

Coach Wallace Butts had his charges running at full speed during most of today's workout, but spent about 15 minutes with freshmen running Furman plays in slow motion as he and his assistants sought to perfect a defense that will effectively stop the trick hurricane attack.

Oliver Hunnicutt, the speedy Macon halfback, continued his brilliant running and blocking this afternoon, and though he is expected to give way to Captain Vassa Cate as a starter, the brilliant senior was assured of plenty of service against Furman.

HUNNICUTT-NOWELL.
Hunnicuttt and Bob Nowell, stockily built blocking back, stole the show in leading ball carriers through holes with terrific and well-timed blocking, and Hunnicutt's slashing running which enabled Georgia to trounce Citadel last week, was the outstanding ball carrying of the day.

Coach Butts will pace his entire squad on buses tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and take off for the South Carolina city where the Bulldogs will work out briefly Thursday night.

The practice in Greenville is being held more to allow the Bulldogs to become a little more accustomed to playing under the arc lights than anything else, and it probably will consist only of warming up exercises, kicking and passing.

It was learned this afternoon that two men who had been counted on heavily for duty in the Furman game, Tommy Malone, end, and Lewis Woodruff, fullback, would be unable to play.

MALONE INJURED KNEE.
Malone is suffering from an injured knee and Woodruff from a chipped tooth which he received in the Citadel game. Malone, who started last Saturday, was hurt during a scrimmage this week but it was not believed at first that he would have to miss the Furman game.

Captain Cate, who missed all of last week's game, will be ready for the Hurricane when Cliff Kimsey, sophomore tailback star who saw only a little service against the Light Brigade. Cate, "Smiley" Johnson, who has been in the infirmary with a cold this week but who Trainer Fitz Lutz said would be "ready to go if the coaches want to use him, and Kimsey, spent the day in the training room but there's nothing the matter with them. They were given the day off to "rest," Lutz said.

With the exception of Malone and Woodruff, the entire Georgia squad will make the trip to Greenville.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Benny Leonard, once holder of Ambers' boxing crown, are among hundreds of guests expected to attend Lou's marriage to Miss Margaret Mary Celio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pio Celio, of Herkimer.

Preps Gather Corn So End Can Play
TRION, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Trion High school squad of 30 men had its fling at the gathering of a corn crop today lest one of its star performers be unable to play in the next game.

Charles Logan, 157-pound end, reported to Coach "Pete" Boney he would have to drop out to gather the crop. Boney, however, met the situation by ordering the entire squad and its two managers to spend a practice session tussling with the corn.

Result: Logan will return to practice and be ready for Friday's game with the Red County (Tennessee) High school.

TARZAN—By Edgar Rice Burroughs

AS TARZAN WENT DOWN, THE FIERCE BANGOUANS
 SHIELDED HIM FROM THE PIRATE RUSH.

"BRING HIM HERE! QUICK!"
 MARIKA CALLED EXCITEDLY.

MYSTIFIED BY THIS SUDDEN TURN, TARZAN STRUG-GLED TO FREE HIMSELF, TO RESUME THE BATTLE.

BUT THE POWERFUL WARRIORS BORE HIM BACK TO THE WAITING MARIKA.

JEFFERSON'S PLEA WEIGHED BY JUDGE

New Trial Asked by Confessed Slayer of Miami Schoolgirl.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Oct. 4.—(P)—Charles Jefferson, 29, condemned hammer-slayer of a Miami High schoolgirl, sought a new trial today.

Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth heard arguments, then took the plea under consideration. If he refuses to throw out the verdict of first-degree murder, it will become his duty to sentence Jefferson to die in Florida's electric chair. Court-appointed Defense Attorney Jack Salisbury has promised an appeal to the state supreme court.

Jefferson admitted on the witness stand that he left Miami August 7 with Frances Dunn and Jean Bolton, 17-year-old schoolgirl, on the promise that he would put them in an important new theatrical venture.

In a thick near Boca Raton, he admitted forcing both to submit to his advances. Then he bludgeoned Frances with a hammer, fired one bullet at her and finally stabbed her twice with a butcher knife. A circuit court jury convicted him a week ago with a mandatory death sentence. The prisoner has not been brought to trial on other indictments for kidnapping for ransom and criminal assault, both also punishable by death.

MERCURY COMBINES COMFORT, BEAUTY

New Convertible, Numerous Improvements in 1940 Models Announced.

A new convertible sedan and numerous improvements will command attention in the presentation of the new 1940 line of Mercury 8 automobiles, it was announced yesterday.

Other body types to be on the 1940 market are the town sedan (four doors), sedan (two doors), sedan-coupe and club convertible. Four models seat six persons, while the club convertible seats five. Buyers will have a choice of eight body colors.

Finger-tip Gear.

Engineering improvements include a finger-tip gearshift on the steering column, new sealed-beam headlights and new torsion bar ride-stabilizer which helps to control sway and enables the car to corner or negotiate rough roads on an even keel.

The 1940 Mercury has gracefully flaring chromium radiator grilles, well-molded hood, smoothly stream-lined body and rear deck and an interior styling treatment of colorful blue and silver tone.

The instrument panel provides the key for the car's interior styling. A new straightline speedometer, gauges and headlight beam indicator are grouped in front of the two-spoke steering wheel. Upholsteries are either blue-gray bark weave broadcloth or two-tone Bedford cord in oscar cars, or saddle-brown or red antique finished genuine leather in convertibles.

Ventilation System.

A new controlled all-weather ventilation system permits draftless circulation of air. The use of polished plate safety glass gives clear vision of the road without eye-tiring distortion and the sealed-beam headlights afford 50 per cent improvement in night driving vision. Improved hydraulic brakes permit quick, straight stops. The driver's seat is adjustable.

The new Mercury is effectively insulated from road bumps, with soft-edged seat cushions, improved hydraulic shock absorbers and longer front springs. A large luggage compartment, reached by a wide door in the rear deck, provides ample room for family luggage. The compartment is lighted automatically when the door is lifted. The spare tire is carried vertically against the front wall.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up in your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
A most novel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." BAPTISTS TO OPEN NEW CANCER CLINIC

State and City Officials Take Part in Dedication Tomorrow.

State and city officials, medical authorities and prominent Baptists will participate in the dedication of Sheffield clinic of Georgia Baptist hospital at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the auditorium of the new cancer clinic building.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, chairman of the hospital committee, will make the principal address. Dr. George H. Semken, who will direct the clinic, will bring greetings from the staff. The following are scheduled for brief messages: Governor Rivers, Mayor Hartsfield, Dr. Edgar H. Greene, president of the Fulton County Medical Society; Dr. Edgar D. Shanks, secretary of the Medical Association of Georgia; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, state commander of the woman's field army; the Rev. E. M. Altman, vice president of the Georgia Baptist convention, and Dr. James W. Merritt, secretary of the Baptist hospital commission.

The Georgia Baptist cancer clinic was established June 1, 1934, at a time when more than 3,000 patients have been examined. Superintendent Barker said the first donation. He later made other large contributions and it is for him that the remodeled $27,000 building is named.

Superintendent Barker said the Sheffield clinic would render a state-wide service in combating cancer. Diagnosis, he added, will be made without charge and all who have a suspicion of cancer lesions or tumors may come to the clinic for examination.

HALLBURTON HELD TO BE LEGALLY DEAD

Jury Declares Colorful Writer Died at Sea on Junk Voyage.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 4.—(P)—Richard Halliburton, who revived fabulous tales of history and legend to write about his adventures—was declared legally dead today. A jury, hearing a suit involving his insurance, declared he died either March 23 or 24, shortly after he was last heard from at sea in a Chinese junk "Sea Dragon," hoping to sail from Hongkong to San Francisco.

Testimony was introduced to show that when Halliburton approached the international date line a typhoon "with waves 40 feet high" struck the vicinity. A search afterward revealed no trace of the junk.

The verdict legally ended the career of one of America's most widely read and well-known adventure-writers. Halliburton was 39.

Born in Memphis and educated at Princeton, Halliburton set out from New Orleans in 1921 on a career of world-wide adventures interrupted only by time out for writing and lecturing.

His flair for dramatic and picturesque description stood him in good stead on the lecture stage as well as in writing and won for the handsome, medium built Halliburton a wide following of adults as well as children.

Wrote of Adventures. Halliburton mainly wrote of actual adventures and often said his most exciting and interesting experiences were the ones people would not read about, which he consequently never wrote. His best known escapades included: Climbing the Matterhorn and Fujiyama in midwinter; Olympus and Popocatepetl; swimming the Hellespont; mapping and tracing on foot Cortez's conquest of Mexico and Balboa's march across Darien that led to the discovery of the Pacific.

Claim High Blood Pressure Relief Through Simple Operation on Rib

Michigan Doctor Reports 76 Per Cent Complete Cure of 196 Patients So Treated; Mortality Rate Less Than Appendectomies, He States.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 4.—(P)—Yield part of a rib and you may gain relief from high blood pressure.

Dr. Max Minor Peet, of Michigan University, told the Kansas City Southwest Medical Clinic he has found the best treatment is removal of part of the eleventh rib and cutting of nerves connected with blood vessels that lead to the kidneys.

He said the operation is not a "cure-all" for the disease but that of 194 patients so treated in six years 76 per cent had gained complete or almost complete relief from symptoms of high blood pressure and 46 per cent had shown definite improvement.

Operation Not Dangerous.

The operation is not dangerous and the mortality rate is 3.5 per cent less than that of appendectomies, he reported. High blood pressure always kills, he added, although it may require six months to 15 years. It affects 15 per cent of all adults and kills four times as many persons as cancer.

The disease, he explained, generally is caused by a diminished

NATIONS NOTIFIED OF 'SAFETY ZONE'

Belligerents Told To Keep Out of Waters Around Western Hemisphere.

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 4.—(UP)—President Juan D. Arosemena, of Panama, acting in behalf of the 21 American republics, today formally advised Great Britain, France and Germany of the adoption by the inter-American conference of a "safety belt" around the western hemisphere in which all belligerent activities will be outlawed.

Observers were surprised that a similar notification was not sent to Poland.

It was pointed out that on Monday, Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared that the United States—whose action was followed later by Mexico—does not recognize conquest of Poland and still maintains relations with the Polish government, which continues to be regarded as a belligerent.

It is understood the question of advising Soviet Russia of the declaration of Panama was considered but decided against because the Russians technically are not at war despite their invasion of Poland.

President Arosemena's action was in accordance with a motion, proposed by United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and approved by the conference, authorizing him to notify the belligerents in the name of all the American nations.

The conference adjourned last night.

SOLUTION SOUGHT IN GANG MYSTERY

Hearing Today May Determine Identity of Prisoner.

Solution to a mystery of 24 years' standing will be sought today at a hearing to determine the identity of a negro who claims he is not the Ike Hudson who escaped from the Randolph county prison camp in October, 1915.

Arrested in Ohio in March, 1938, he was returned to Georgia and since has been serving the remainder of a 16-year sentence for voluntary manslaughter—as Hudson, who was convicted in 1909.

In those days there were no photographs or fingerprints and state officials have declared they will rely on the memory of several persons who knew Hudson in an effort to prove they have the right man.

The hearing will be before Hart County Ordinary A. E. Erbterberger.

MEXICO ASKS BIDS IN U. S. FOR ARMS

50,000 Rifles, 32 Field Artillery Pieces Proposed for 1940 Budget.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—(P)—Informed sources said today the Mexican government was asking bids in the United States for 50,000 rifles, 20,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, 32 field artillery pieces and an undisclosed number of machine guns.

This was reported as General Domingo Arrieta, federal senator for Durango state, presented in congress a proposal for a special appropriation for arms and munitions in the 1940 budget.

"Who can assure us that in an unexpected moment we may not face an attack or threat from imperialism which extends its tentacles throughout the world and when that moment arrives we will have to lament our lack of foresight in the face of suffering beclouding other unfortunate nations, victims of that imperialism?" the senator asked.

He proposed purchase of arms, munitions, ships, planes, tanks and other war paraphernalia. The proposal was made to the chamber of deputies, where appropriation legislation originates.
